Relief Expenses Soar, County To Ask City's Help

Commissioners Call Situation Most Critical in Two Years, Invite Hunter and Styert to Meet on Problem; 1,200 Families on Rolls, Relief Debt Totals $30,000.

Faced with the most critical relief situation in at least two years, Richland county commissioners today prepared to call on the city of Mansfield to help pay the mounting expenses of aiding the needy.

P. S. Carroll, clerk of the board of commissioners, said Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert had been invited to meet with the commissioners and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe at the courthouse probably this afternoon or tomorrow to consider the relief problem.

With about 60 per cent of the county's relief cases in Mansfield, commissioners said the problem was one for the city as well as for the county and indicated they would ask the city to contribute its share of funds for matching allocations due from the state.

Wholly unprepared for the crisis that has been thrust on them by the business recession and severe weather, neither the city nor the county has appropriated any funds for direct relief in setting up their 1938 budgets.

County Job for 2 Years.

The city has had no part in the administration of direct relief for more than two years. During that time state and federal funds have been allocated to the county and through the county relief office have been distributed to indigent persons.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said any funds to be contributed by the city will have to come out of the general fund, and declined to predict the amount the city can spare until county and city officials have considered the problem together.

The county's relief picture, darkest since depression days, shows from 1,100 to 1,200 families receiving direct aid in Mansfield, Madison and Jefferson townships and Shelby, and the county's relief debt at nearly $30,000.

Describing the situation as "an unexpected crisis," Auditor Wolfe said bills this month are expected to total around $16,000. The December bills, amounting to $14,000, remain unpaid.

The county is due to receive more than $18,000 from the state within the next few days as the balance of a surplus relief bond fund which is being allocated before the new relief bill goes into effect. Wolfe indicated a part of the funds would be used to pay past-due bills and the rest would be held for matching purposes.

The new relief measure, recently passed by the state legislature and signed by Gov. Martin L. Davey, requires that the local sub-divisions match state funds

SOLON DIES IN HOTEL PLUNGE

Kenney, Jersey Congressman, Killed In 6-Story Fall Following Party.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Rep Edward A. Kenney, D., N. J., plunged from a sixth floor window of the smart Carleton hotel today to almost instant death on a cement driveway.

Kenney, New York and Hackensack attorney who won prominence in congress for his sponsorship of proposals for a national lottery, fell from French windows in a hotel suite after a party of New Jersey political leaders and businessmen.

He was dead when his body, clad only in underwear, was found shortly after 8 a. m.

Physicians at Emergency hospital said he apparently had plunged to his death about two hours before his body was found—which would time the accident at about 6 a. m.

Kenney last night attended a party at the fashionable 16th Street hotel, sponsored by the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce. A special train from Newark, N. J., had brought several hundred New Jersey political figures and business leaders to the capital for the celebration, which was attended by 10 of the 16 members of the state's congressional delegation. Sen. John Milton, D., N. J., newly-seated senator, was a guest of honor.

Identification first was established by discovery of Kenney's clothing, watch and wallet in a sixth floor room which was part of a suite reserved for the New Jersey party last night. French windows whose sills were only about 18 inches above the floor, were open. Police surmised that Kenney, groping in the darkness, mistook the windows for a closet or bathroom door, and stumbled into space.

Federal Reserve Says Drop In Industrial Output Halted.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Cheering reports on industrial production, foreign trade and wholesale business, coupled with findings that wage cuts have been few, encouraged administration officials today.

The federal reserve board said in its monthly review of business conditions that the decline in industrial output—which caused concern near the end of 1937—had been halted this month.

The first three weeks of January, the report said, showed little change in production, as contrasted with December's decline.

The commerce department announced that December exports of industrial machinery, automobiles and grain were high. The first two items had the best export month in nine years.

Mrs. Culbertson Wins Divorce; Stays As Ely's Bridge Mate.

RENO—(AP)—Mrs. Ely Culbertson was en route eastward today to resume a business partnership with the contract bridge expert she said was too "ultra-temperamental" to live with as a husband.

Mrs. Culbertson, the former Josephine Murphy, terminated her marriage of 14 years yesterday with a Reno divorce. "We expect to continue to work together," she said.

BLAZE KILLS 3

Three Children Perish as Flames Sweep Rooming House.

HUGO, Okla.—(U.P.)—Three children were burned to death today when fire swept a rooming house. Jess Pelmer, 41, father of the children, was burned critically when he attempted to rescue them from the second story where they were asleep.

Two of the children, Billy, 7, and Lee, 9, died in their bed. Mary, 11, jumped to the ground and died several hours later.

Break In Cold Wave Seen By Tomorrow

DRIFTS STILL BLOCK RURAL SCHOOL ROADS

Only Three In County Open Today as Pupils Get Second Holiday.

MODERATE WEATHER DUE

Main Highways Open; Scores of Stranded Cars Keep Garages Busy.

Moderating temperatures and an abating wind aided street and road employes in the Richland county area today as they dug out of more than six inches of snow which accompanied the most severe storm of the winter. Forecasts said the two-day cold wave would release its grasp of the mid-west by tomorrow.

Most of the county's rural schools remained closed, however, because buses were unable to get through huge drifts that blocked secondary roads. Added to the list of schools closed yesterday were the Madison township high school and others in the immediate vicinity of Mansfield.

Re-open Tomorrow.

Only the Hickory Hall, Maple Grove and Beer schools, all east of Mansfield, remained open today in Madison township, according to school officials. Rural schools were expected to re-open by Friday morning.

If no more snow falls today, most of the county's secondary roads, which have been impassable for two days, will be open by late this afternoon, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said.

The southern half of the county was hit hardest by the storm, with several farm homes reported isolated by the snow which drifted across secondary roads. Schools remained closed at Bellville, Lexington and throughout the rural areas.

Highways Open But Slippery.

Although slippery, the main highways in the county, including routes 30, 42 and 13, were open to traffic. Mansfield streets, cleared of snow by plows which were on the job most of the night, were like trenches between high walls of snow. Six city street maintenance trucks, manned by Roosevelt Names Anti-Trust Attorney to Reed Post.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt nominated Robert H. Jackson of New York today to be solicitor general of the United States. He is now assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust cases.

Jackson will succeed Stanley F. Reed of Kentucky, who received his commission as a member of the supreme court from the president earlier in the day.

Reed will take his seat on the high bench Monday.

Jackson, whose home is in Jamestown, N. Y., will be 46 on Feb. 13.

As head of the anti-trust section, he was successful in several major prosecutions.

Court Holds Rich Tapestries As Ownership Battle Starts

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Six 17th century Goeblin tapestries worth a king's ransom were under the jurisdiction of a Cleveland court today—there to remain until a judge unravels a fantastic skein of circumstances to determine their rightful owner.

Woven from designs by the Dutch artist, Peter Paul Rubens, the works of art depict scenes from Homer's Odyssey.

James W. Ryan, attorney for Morgan Brothers warehouse of New York, said the tapestries were stolen from his clients in 1932. He instituted a nationwide hunt, Ryan said, but until a few weeks ago their whereabouts was unknown.

G. Harold Edgel, Boston museum curator, received an offer from a Cleveland lawyer, Ryan said, to sell "six tapestries for $200,000 which are worth much more."

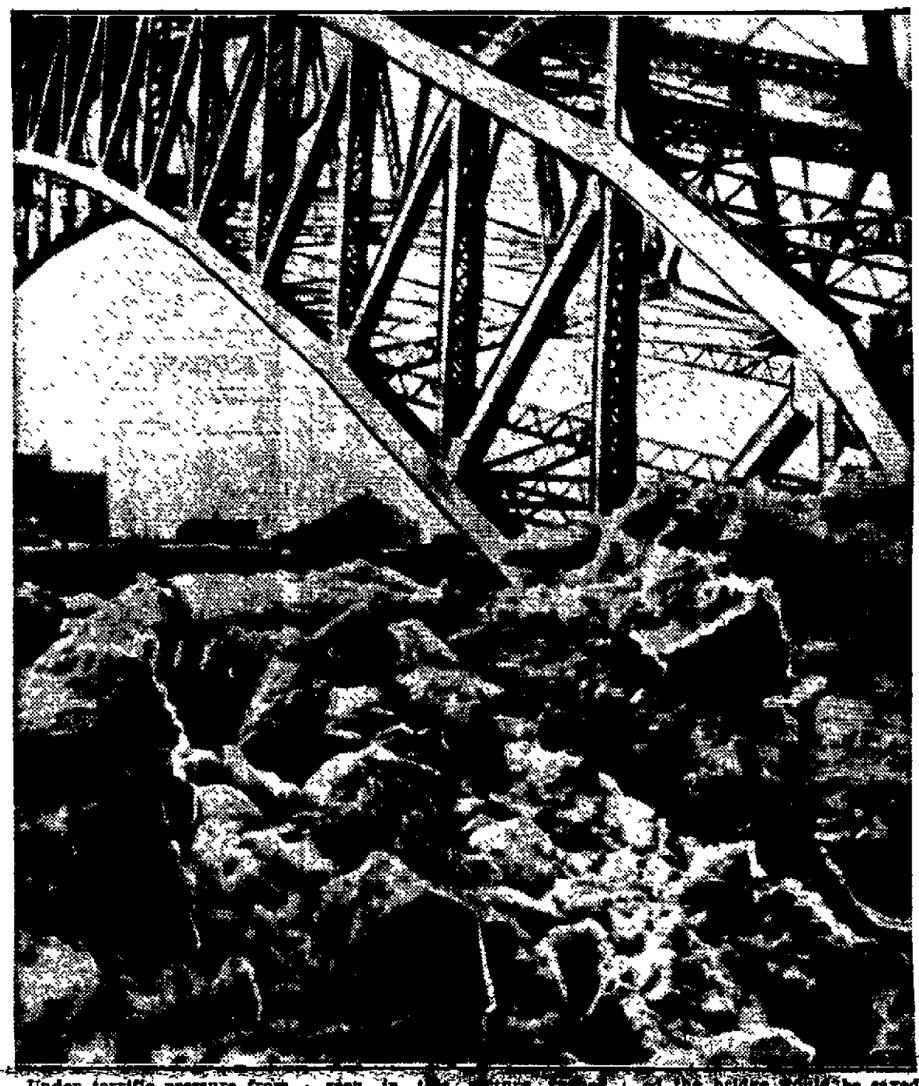
This led to their discovery in a Cleveland storage warehouse.

Ryan started a replevin suit, contesting which are Francis Zimmer and George F. Ebenger, former operators of a Cleveland club.

Zimmer declined to name an attorney he said wanted to purchase the tapestries on condition that he receive a legal title.

"I asked the department of justice myself to trace them," said Zimmer, who claimed a Warren, O., business man posted the tapestries as security for a $15,000 loan in 1932. The acquaintance told him, Zimmer said, that he bought the tapestries from a man who obtained them from Fox Film Corp. at New York, and insured them for $60,000. The borrower died two years ago without repaying the loan, Zimmer said.

As Ice Jam Threatened Niagara Falls Bridge



Under terrific pressure from an ice gorge in the Niagara river, the Falls View bridge from the United States to Canada at Niagara Falls began buckling in the middle. Ice, seen in the picture pushed from Niagara Falls, piled to a depth of approximately 40 feet around the bridge piers and lower girders of the 1,000-foot structure—but engineers believed the bridge would be saved, although earlier reports said it was feared it would collapse. As the picture above shows, it was withstanding the pressure. The picturesque span is 47 years old.

Fight Ice Jam With Picks To Save Famed Falls Span

Crews Battle to Relieve Pressure; Engineers Believe Bridge Will Withstand Terrific Strain.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Pick-and-shovel crews battled a wall of ice 100 feet high today, hoping to save Falls View bridge, known to honeymooners throughout the world.

The towering, single arch span, for 47 years a link between the United States and Canada, was undergoing tremendous pressure from the mountainous ice jam, but engineers believed it could withstand it.

Its steel girders twisted and torn, the historic bridge, from which thousands have viewed both the Canadian and American falls, bulged and swayed under the almost constant pushing of the ice, and surveyors estimated that it had been forced out of line from two to three feet.

Maids of Mist Damaged.

The ice threatened to damage severely other land marks familiar to honeymooners. The new docks of the famous Maid of the Mist steamers, built last summer at a cost of $9,000, were crushed, and the two boats were lifted high out of their berths.

The tourist cabin at the foot of the American falls and the well-known Cave of the Winds trail were damaged. Authorities feared that the pressure might even injure the two elevators leading to the wooden catwalk which winds around the foot of the falls.

Fifteen huge generators in the Niagara Falls plant of the Ontario Power company on the Canadian side were ruined by ice and water. The estimated loss was $1,000,000. Operations in the plant ceased.

The 28 miles of river below the falls was filled with giant chunks of ice, which threatened other power plants and homes along the shore.

Workers, aided by floodlights that made the ice blocks look like great, sparkling diamonds in the night, chopped at the wall around the bridge to relieve the pressure. Their job was most dangerous, as a slip might mean death in the cold waters below.

Woman Convinced She'll Die In Illinois Chair Tonight.

CHESTER, Ill. — (AP) — Two stolid condemned slayers, Angelo Ralph Giancola and Mrs. Marie Porter, awaited hopelessly today the end of a week's reprieve and the last 17 steps to the electric chair that may make her its first woman victim shortly after midnight tonight.

Mrs. Porter indicated she had given up her former belief Gov. Henry Horner would prevent her from being the first woman executed in Illinois.

She and Giancola were sentenced to death for the murder of her brother, William Kappen, on his wedding day last July near Belleville, Ill. All principals of the case were residents of St. Louis, Mo.

$250,000 FIRE HITS EVANSVILLE

Flood-Wrecked Town Battles Business District Blaze.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. —(AP)— Evansville, which lost part of its wholesale district by flood a year ago this month, lost nearly a half-block of it by fire today with damage firemen estimated might reach $250,000.

The flames apparently starting from a short circuit in an automobile on the second floor of the Nash Motor Sales Company, Inc., spread quickly to the adjoining Brucken Store Fixtures company, the Evansville Goodwill Industries, Inc., and the Pro-Texall Chemical company.

Lieut. Harry Metzer received a leg injury when he fell from the second floor of the Nash building.

FIRE HITS CAR OF CORK

JURY HEARS SIX MORE, RECESSES

Continues Investigation of Financial Transactions at Reformatory.

The special Richland county parole grand jury, still apparently far afield from paroles, continued its investigation of financial transactions at Mansfield reformatory between the years of 1925 and 1928, and was to recess this afternoon, thus bringing to a close its second week.

Assistant Attorney General Paul Hergenroeder announced that this week's session would close this afternoon. The jury heard four witnesses this morning, and was to hear further testimony from Chief Clerk Ben Owen this afternoon. Hergenroeder said the jury might be taken on a tour of some of the institution factories which it missed in its tour last week.

One of the witnesses this morning was James T. Keenan, reporter for Ohio Scripps-Howard newspapers, who was in a large measure responsible for the state-wide parole investigation. The investigation was ordered by Governor

Akron Gas Rate Case Ordered Back To Utilities Commission

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The city of Akron's controversial gas rate case headed back to the State Utilities commission today by order of the Ohio supreme court.

The commission's average rate finding of 62.35 cents per thousand cubic feet, was appealed by both the city and the East Ohio Gas company but the court, in unanimously ordering the case back to the commission yesterday, made no expression of what it considered a fair rate.

The case—followed closely by other communities involved in rate controversies with East Ohio because it may determine a uniformly higher "gas rate" for natural gas supplied the company by the Hope Natural Gas company—involves the rate to be applied for the consumption of gas between May 19, 1933 and May 19, 1937.

The court directed the commission to reconsider a contract price which East Ohio paid the Hope company. The commission held as reasonable a contract price of 38.5 cents per thousand cubic feet but Judge George S. Myers, who dissented on several findings in the opinion, expressed belief that 37.1 was reasonable.

Judge Myers said he regarded 6 per cent as an adequate rate of return on East Ohio's investment but the majority of the court upheld the commission's decision of 6½ per cent. The company had asked for 7½ or 8 per cent.

City Awaits State Sewage Plant Report

Holds Up Final Payment Until Health Board's Findings Arrive.

Following a four-hour inspection of Mansfield's $331,000 sewage disposal plant, Bruce McDill, state health board engineer, had returned to Columbus today to make out his report, and Mayor Claude M. Hunter announced that the final payment on the plant would be held up at least until McDill's report has been submitted.

Before leaving Mansfield yesterday afternoon, McDill indicated that he would turn over his findings to F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the state health board tomorrow.

He made his inspection of the plant with Mayor Hunter and Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert, and also conferred with Paul Sotherland, operating engineer of the plant.

Reveals One Recommendation.

McDill would comment but little on what recommendations he might make or what his findings were, but he did state that he would recommend the installation of an automatic by-pass valve in the main line, just before it enters the plant, to protect the plant against an over-capacity load during rainy periods. This valve would replace a manual one now used to direct raw sewage into a nearby stream at such times.

This difficulty is due to the fact that many Mansfield residences dump storm water into the sanitary sewer system, thus overloading the plant, it was pointed out.

During the inspection, however, McDill agreed with Sotherland that the five-horsepower motors now used to turn the paddles in the aeration tanks should be replaced by motors of seven and a half horsepower, and agreed with Mayor Hunter who asked if it wasn't true that "efficiency was being sacrificed for the sake of power saving" through the use of smaller motors.

Sotherland has reported that the motors would not turn the paddles as designed when the full air pressure is used in the tanks. The agitating blades on the paddles have been reduced in size, and their angle lessened but the motors still have failed to carry the load.

McDill reiterated his statement of yesterday, made before the inspection trip, that "basically the principles of design are satisfactory." He added that "there are a few features that need correcting and adjusting, but that is a

SPIRITS RISE

Wright More Hopeful as Attorney Outlines Case.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Dolorous, grim-visaged Paul A. Wright, on trial for his life, seemed somewhat heartened today as his counsel set out to prove that an emotional and mental shock caused the airport executive to kill his wife, Evelyn, and his friend, John Kimmel.

Jerry Giesler, chief of Wright's counsel, then outlined the fight he would make to save his client's life. Wright became more animated as Giesler told the jury he would show the defendant was always a kind and loving husband and father; that there was no motive for premeditated murder; that Wright and Kimmel were the best of friends.

Giesler said Wright would testify in detail to a "horrifying and terrible situation" in which he found Kimmel and Mrs. Wright in the Wright home early Nov. 9, the day of the killings.

FORMER HEAD OF OIL FIRM TELLS OF 'FEE'

Testifies Ex-Mayor of Akron Paved Way For Sales to State Department.

EMPLOYED AS 'AGENT'

'Sponsorer' Necessary to Do Business With State, Says Cleveland Witness.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Burt Zimmerman, former president of the Columbia Refining company, Cleveland, testified before the senate graft investigating committee today that he paid "commissions" totaling $5,328.56 on sales of gasoline to the state highway department during 1935, 1936 and 1937.

Zimmerman testified the payments were made to G. Lloyd Weil, former Akron mayor.

'Commission' Varies.

A commission of from one-half cent to three-quarters of a cent a gallon on gasoline was paid to Weil, and 10 per cent was paid on sales of oil to the state, the witness stated.

From January, 1935, to August, 1936, Weil sold 533,525 gallons of gasoline for the company, Zimmerman said. The company went out of business last summer.

Zimmerman told the committee that Weil solicited employment as an "agent" for the company in January, 1935. He said he never had seen Weil before that.

"Mr. Weil said he was in addition to get us some business with the state," Zimmerman testified.

He said that several checks made out to Weil were in the possession of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson. The auditor could not be found to produce the checks.

'Sponsor' Needed.

Zimmerman testified that his business with the highway department had been "practically nil" until he employed Weil.

The witness said he did not remember any sales made by Weil to any agency other than the state.

"In business with political subdivision, it seems that you must either have a sponsor of some kind or do a lot of entertaining," Zimmerman said.

Continuation of the investigation was assured when the house voted to adjourn sine die Feb. 28 and leaders of the senate said that body would concur. Adjournment of the legislature, many of its members agree, will end the investigation, and lieutenants of Gov. Martin L. Davey fought for a Feb. 10 adjournment date.

Admits Commissions.

In a committee hearing yesterday Weil, who contributed about $3,500 to the state Democratic

City To Barricade Three Streets For Coasters Tonight

The plea of hundreds of youngsters for protected coasting places will be answered tonight if it is possible to get the barricades placed in time, Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today.

Hunter and Safety Director Tracy Styert said at least three streets will be opened to coasters tonight. Barricades used in other years have been lost and a number of new ones were ordered this morning by Styert.

One of the best coasting places in the city and one of the safest, Hunter said, is Sturges avenue hill between Cline and Glessner, which was used last summer for the soap box derby. It provides a steep hill and straight shoot, with a little rise at the foot. This will be the first place blocked off.

West Third street hill will be given over to coasters, with barricades and red lanters shutting off traffic on Sycamore. The third street will be Harker, between North Mulberry and North Main.

Every protection in the way of barriers to block off the intersecting streets will be given, Hunter said, but it will be impossible to provide police protection for the crossings because "there aren't enough patrolmen available for such duty," Hunter added.

PEIPING, China—(AP)—China's red legions and peasant irregulars are on the march against Japanese in the vast North China area.

Concentrating swiftly, attacking swiftly and dispersing swiftly, they have struck time and again at Japanese communication lines and Japanese garrisons.

Authentic details of this warfare in the frozen northern provinces, where the Chinese-Japanese conflict began, were brought to Japanese-conquered Peiping today by foreigners who arrived from the war areas.

They reported that during January Chinese irregulars along the Peiping-Hankow and Chengtai railroads wiped out small detachments of Japanese troops in at least 20 instances.

Raid 3 Times Weekly.

Sallies of the irregulars interrupted traffic on the Japanese controlled portion of the Peiping-Hankow line, one of China's main north-south rail arteries, on an average of three times a week.

Japanese garrisons at Tinghsien, 100 miles southwest of here, were annihilated on three different occasions.

The Chinese red army spurred irregulars to new attacks by holding a military congress of all guerrilla forces at Fuping, in western Hopeh province near China's great wall.

One of the decisions of the congress was to stamp out banditry and looting.

Chinese peasants taking refuge in Peiping from along the Peiping-Hankow railway say life is becoming impossible in many districts. Attacks and counter attacks sweep through helpless villages with both sides killing extensively on suspicion of espionage.

Organize Peasants.

Communists are actively engaged in organizing the Hopeh province peasantry. Ten miles back of the railroad they have plastered the countryside with posters saying:

"Down with Japan?"

(Shanghai dispatches quoted Chinese military leaders as announcing that guerrilla warfare on widespread battlefronts had brought increasing success against the Japanese invaders, and prevented Japanese from attempting further advances.

(The nation's rejuvenated airforce also played a part in the increased resistance. The Japanese attack on the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways, which cross at Suchow, apparently was stalemated).

Ex-Kaiser Cheered As Windsors Send Him Birthday Note

DOORN, THE NETHERLANDS — (AP) — Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany celebrated his 79th birthday today—one of his happiest since he fled to his woodchopping exile in closing hours of the World war.

He was convinced that the once mighty Hohenzollerns, erstwhile ruling family of Germany, and their cousins the British house of Windsor, were friends again.

The affectionate signatures, "Bertie, May and Elizabeth," on a telegram from King George VI (Bertie), Queen Mother Mary (May), and Queen Elizabeth spelled for him the healing of a scar which festered when British and German troops faced each each other on the Western Front.

Today's celebration program was on traditional lines: Divine service at 9 a. m., felicitations and presents from the family, the kaiser in silent prayer in the boudoir which his first wife, the former Empress Auguste Victoria, occupied until her death, lunch with members of the family and a gala evening dinner with the ex-monarch in field marshal's uniform.

The gullible souls who have been indignant over that story going the rounds about the girl being "drugged" at a local theater and carried out by some evil stranger, are still wondering where it started. No one knows, but it is just one of those stories that bob up about every five years in every city. In Mansfield it has been ascribed to every theater in town—and in Marion, Bucyrus, and Columbus, it's still going strong. It probably never happened at all, except in the imagination of a writer for tabloid thrillers. In the meantime, however, Mansfield theater managers are getting pretty well fed up denying it, or that it is being "hushed up."

DAVEY AIDS MAP SENATE DRIVE

Seek to Bring Pressure For Approval of Pickens on Industrial Commission.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Lieutenants of Gov. Martin L. Davey started bringing pressure in the senate today to obtain approval of his two appointees to the state industrial commission and the Ohio State university board of trustees.

The senate rules committee refused last week, by a vote of 5 no to 3 yes, to recommend that the senate confirm the appointment of Ferd M. Pickens to the industrial commission. No action has been taken on the appointment of Lockwood Thompson of Cleveland to the university board.

The committee was expected to take up again today the appointment of Pickens, who is from Circleville, and that of Thompson.

At the same time it was reported efforts would be made to have the senate rescind its election of Sen. Maurice W. Lipscher (D.-Mahoning) to the rules committee.

Lipscher was placed on the rules committee yesterday to succeed Edward N. Waldvogel of Cincinnati, resigned, when the senate adopted a resolution offered by Democratic Floor Leader Keith Lawrence of Cleveland.

Some critics of the governor's appointees were inclined to believe Lipscher was put on the committee to help swing its majority in favor of Pickens and Thompson. These critics contend further that Lipscher should have been elected by the committee, not by the senate.

LAST YEAR'S BEACH CLOGS ARE TODAY'S HIGH-SOLED SANDALS

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Beach clogs with 3-inch soles for evening wear, fabric shoes in multi-colored stripes, and patent leather pumps in pastel shades will share the spotlight in women's footwear fashions for the coming spring and summer, according to Ruth Kerr, co-director of the National Shoe Fair Style review.

The most striking innovation is the high-soled sandal, first seen early last fall on the beaches of the French Riviera. Miss Kerr said. Made of balsa wood, it was originally designed to lift the wearer above the sands. It proved such a boon to shorter women that manufacturers are now showing models, finished in gold, silver or mahogany for evening wear. Hidden under long dresses, they add inches to the shortest debutante.

Four new colors apparently will dominate spring wear. In order of their popularity they are Paris and Marine blue, copper, and Rose Berry, a wine shade of red much softer than Dubonnet. The Paris blue is lighter and somewhat richer than navy; Marine is darker.

Fabrics, such as gabardine and challis, will be equally popular with leathers. Asymetrical and flowered designs and stripes will be featured for summer afternoon and evening wear. Two-tones are more in demand than solid colors

A newly fashioned hi-low heel, slightly higher than the present Cuban heel, will be seen on most street shoes The toeless and heelless models of last season will be continued with opening smaller and more modest.

All shoes will be tailored or draped, Miss Kerr said. Lacing designs on toe and along the instep add to this effect. A peasant influence is felt on some models that show a moccasin stitching along the sole.

Satin and mesh combinations are being shown for the more formal evening wear.

MOVE FOR CIO TRUCE SEEN AT MIAMI MEETING

Dewey, Labor Department's Ace Mediator, to Confer With Green, Aids.

MIAMI—(U.P.)—James F. Dewey, crack conciliator of the department of labor, arrived at the executive council meeting of the American Federation of Labor today, presumably to seek a truce between the A. F. of L. and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

His appearance at the crucial meeting—which may take steps in the direction of either armistice or more vigorous war between the rival organizations—led to rumors that he may possess some new governmental suggestion for peace machinery.

Says He's 'Observer.'

Although Dewey said he was here only as "an observer," it was learned that he had scheduled a series of conferences with A. F. of L. leaders and hoped to talk privately with President William Green. He conferred with John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, immediately before leaving Washington.

Dewey has sought for three weeks to establish a new union armistice formula devised by John R Steelman, head of the federal conciliation service and Dewey's immediate superior. The Steelman plan would settle differences between rival unions in individual industry to pave the way for simplified peace negotiations between the parent organizations—the A. F. of L. and the CIO.

But the jumbled union picture gave no indication whether thoughts of peace or more warfare were uppermost in the minds of rival leaders. Shortly after Green had announced that the federation still is willing to discuss settlement with the CIO—providing the Lewis group initiates action—the latest armistice trial balloon apparently was deflated.

Lewis, in a speech to his United Mine Workers convention at Washington, said he favored reunion, but either the CIO must be accepted in its entirety by the federation or vice versa, the A. F of L. must enter the CIO

Green dismissed Lewis' suggestion sharply. He said it offered nothing new Immediately, argument began among council members regarding the authority of the three-man A. F. of L. committee, which negotiated unsuccessfully for peace with the CIO Green insisted that the committee had full power to come to terms. Matthew Woll, a member of both the council and the A. F. of L. committee, backed Green's view.

Senate debated Anti-Lynching bill; house passed minor bills.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

AMONG other things the struggle over the anti-lynching bill, which seems now about ended, has revealed, is that there exists in the nation neither need nor demand for any of the pending or suggested legislation, whether sponsored by the White House or originating in congress, the passage of which has been prevented or delayed by the filibuster.

If there had been such need or demand it would have developed in an unmistakable way in the last five weeks. Recently an effort has been made to create the impression that the people "back home" had become restive over the failure of congress to function. Actually, there is not the least evidence of any such popular feeling. On the contrary, the mail of senators has been singularly free of protesting letters or any "hint from home" of public indignation such as would be inevitable if the filibuster had blocked measures for which there was a real sentiment.

* * *

WHAT pressure there is comes not from the people but from the lobbies interested in and representing the particular classes concerned—and the letters the lobbyists can inspire—not from the classes themselves. All of which is pretty significant. What it very clearly means is that the administration program, with its wage-and-hour bill, its crop-control bill, its departmental reorganization bill and its TVA expansion bills, represents the president's idea of what the people need, but the people themselves are not at all disturbed about the delay in getting it. No other deduction is possible from the lack of interest they show.

* * *

IT IS rather a strange situation. Last year the president insisted that at least two of the measures —wage and hour and crop control—were immediately essential; that the people had given him a mandate for them; that they were urgently needed. When congress did not pass them in the regular session, he called a special session of congress. When congress failed to pass them at the special session, he renewed the demand when it again met in regular session. Now, four weeks after convening, no step toward passing them has been taken because of the prolonged filibuster on the anti-lynching bill. Yet there is no outcry from the people and no denunciation of the filibusterers from the press.

* * *

THE REASONS are not far to seek One of them clearly is the absence of any widespread popular sentiment behind the main features of the delayed presidential program. As a matter of fact, it is fair to say that if there is not general indifference there is at least no excitement about it. Another reason is because it is so apparent that the administration could have ended the delay at any moment the White House decided that the passage of its other bills was more important than the passage of the anti-lynching bill. One word from Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Barkley, his leader, would have sidetracked the latter so quick it would have made the head swim.

* * *

NOT ONLY that, but the sidetracking would have been done with great rejoicing and relief, because few politicians ever suffered more acutely than "Dear Alben" is suffering from the necessity of pressing this measure, which everybody knows he supports only under orders and would far rather oppose. Of course, it it now generally recognized that the administration support of this bill is due to its desire to hold the colored vote in the northern states, through the colored leaders and lobbyists who are gathered in Washington to see that the administration does not weaken. And the real driving force behind the bill is Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who, with federal patronage and relief funds, his opponents charge, has succeeded in bagging practically the whole of the great colored vote in the state. Without that vote, Mr. Guffey would not now be in the senate, and without that vote Mr. Roosevelt would not have carried Pennsylvania.

* * *

THE humanitarian pretenses of the bill and the contention that it would prevent lynchings have been shot to pieces by the debate. It stands out starkly as an exceedingly vicious proposal, the real motive behind which is the extremely sordid one of catering to the influential colored leaders in the northern states. Considering all the circumstances, it is not surprising the filibuster has been allowed to run four weeks without any public resentment toward the filibusterers. A true grasp of the facts would justify popular anger, not toward the filibusterers but toward the administration politicians, who hypocritically hiding behind a humanitarian cloak, and for purely political reasons, have insisted upon the passage of this bill ahead of everything else—tried—and unsuccessfully tried—to jam it through as though there were some great crisis to be met or situations to be saved.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The set of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" was tight-closed against visitors the other day. Reason: Miss Claudette Colbert, enacting a sequence in a bathing suit, insisted on privacy.

There are virtually as many reasons for "closed sets" as there are stars who demand them. Best publicized is Garbo's, the Swedish lady's shyness. Any star who makes a habit of excluding observers is forthwith labeled as "pulling a Garbo."

Katharine Hepburn, for some time now, has been "pulling a Garbo." Although she came from the stage, where players are supposed to like audiences, Katie will have none of them in the sound cages. In mitigation, it may be remembered that most of her stage shows were flops, not calculated to build confidence.

Joan Crawford used to like visitors. Now she usually sweeps to her dressing room at the click of the latch Any star, beset by rumors of domestic trouble, is likely to act this way. Denying gossip becomes monotonous.

* * *

Kay Francis shies from strangers, sometimes bars friends to avoid the former. Fred Astaire, certainly an unassuming fellow, asks privacy when he gets fussed and bothered with his work, which is intricate enough at best. Edward G. Robinson, usually expansive, likes to "die" unobserved. Carole Lombard, lately, has been avoiding most women reporters, chats freely with men. Mae West, with a few exceptions, likewise shuns the feminine pen Their sets, however, are seldom closed.

Paul Muni likes being watched, occasionally likes to talk to visitors, but is extremely "choosy" in picking them. He's the sort of actor who gets wrapped up in a role and doesn't want to be jarred out of it by time-of-day stuff.

* * *

Operatic stars you'd expect to be temperamental don't live up to the name. Grace Moore comes closest, although she's never been anything but gracious when I've been around. It's after the observer leaves that Grace speaks her mind, if it so happens she didn't want visitors that day. Lily Pons is as friendly as a child, and it's not an act. Where Gladys Swarthout is concerned the whole world could watch her work—and welcome.

Bette Davis had a closed set the other day—I think it was her first She'd just had word of her father's death. Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart, Warner Baxter, James Cagney, John Boles, Leslie Howard, Joan Blondell, Myrna Loy, Rosalind Russell, Errol Flynn and others who never have closed sets—at their requests. They sometimes close the Leslie Howard sets—not to keep visitors out, but to keep Howard in. He's likely to wander away, visiting other sets.

W S. Van Dyke has the welcome mat out always (except when directing Norma Shearer), but many other directors are touchy. Anatole Litvak ("Tovarich") is constitutionally opposed to visitors, where Archie Mayo and William Wyler and Cecil B. DeMille and Clarence Brown (except when directing Garbo) thrive on them. John Ford, who doesn't mind visitors with a reason for visiting, is "choosy."

During the making of "The Hurricane" a Goldwyn executive arrived on the set with a friend. There was an almost instant cessation of activity. Ford sat down, waited until the pair, in some embarrassment, departed before he proceeded.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

DISCUSSES "SYDNEY" AT SAPPHO MEETING

Classic Dance Forms Presented by Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Butterfield, Mrs. Clingan, Mrs. Todd Gives Musical Notes.

CONTINUING to study one city and one type of musical composition members of the Sappho club met yesterday at the Women's Club to hear a paper, "Sydney—Oldest City In Australia," and musical selections depicting the various classic dance forms. Mrs. J. M. Johnston and Mrs. L. J. Schubert were hostesses.

Mrs. Paul W. Williams opened the program with the vocal selections "Menuet" by Spencer Johnson and "Minuet" by Grazcoli. The violin obbligato was played by Mrs. E. D. Gibson and Miss Thelma Reed was the accompanist.

"Rhythm" was the topic of the music notes which were next offered by Mrs J. H. Todd. "Gigue" by Bach and "Sarabande" by Handel were Mrs. A. C. Butterfield's piano selections. Mrs. H. H. Clingan played "Gavotte" by Martini, "Courante" and "Allemande" by Handel.

Mrs. J. L Stevens spoke on Sydney and described the agricultural aspects as well as the modern city. "It was the enthusiasm of the people which caused Sydney to be one of the most rapidly developed of modern cities," she said.

In wool alone Sydney, which is one of the largest export cities in the world, exported $60,000,000 worth last year. Mrs. Stevens spoke specifically of the family life and the love of outdoor sports shown by the people. The city itself is comparable to Boston in appearance and has traces of classic architecture, Victorian buildings, and modern structures.

The club will meet again Feb. 9 at the Women's Club with Miss Helen Hartmann and Mrs Lillian Pauley as hostesses. The program will be presented by Mrs. W. E. Renwick, Miss Thelma Reed and Mrs. J. H. Finefrock.

Movies Shown At Study Club Meet

Mrs. Alan Tappan presented a paper on "The Early Customs of Hawaii" and illustrated her talk with a movie of the people at a meeting of the Wednesday Study club. In her talk she discussed the living habits, the religion, the foods, and various factors of a distinguishing nature. Mrs. C. L. Reely, Douglas avenue, was hostess to the group yesterday.

Miss Alise Lillie, Boston, who is the house guest of Mrs. George Draffan, was a guest of the club. Tea was served and Mrs. Burton Preston and Mrs. C. F. Routzahn presided at the tea table.

The next regular meeting of the organization will be Feb. 9 at the Women's Club. Miss Bertha Patterson will be hostess.

Fortnight Club Holds Supper, Party at YW

Miss Wilamine Hoffman was hostess last night to members of the Fortnight club when they met at the Y. W. C. A. for a social meeting and dinner. Miss Alfretta Bowden was in charge of the short business session.

The sports theme was carried out in the table decorations with favors of small figures engaged in various sports at each place. Tall tapers lighted the table. Games and contests followed. The next meeting is being omitted so that members may attend the annual meeting of the YWCA which will be held Feb. 8.

ENTERTAINS CHURCH GROUP.

Mrs. H. S. Stiffler, 662 Park avenue west, was hostess to Division Three of the United Presbyterian church last night. The brief business meeting was led by Mrs. R. B. Anderson, president. The remainder of the evening was spent in a social time. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. W. Rusk, West First street, Feb. 23.

Organize Delta Chapter Of Delphian Society

The Delta chapter of the Delphian society was organized last night at a meeting at the Leland hotel.

Officers for the new chapter were elected as follows: Mrs. W. B. Osborn, president; Mrs. Paul Cropper, vice president; Mrs. John Summers, secretary; Mrs. S. A. Burger, treasurer; Mrs. J. Gilbert Baird, publicity chairman; Mrs. Kent Myers, Mrs. George L. Evans and Mrs. W. B. Donnelly, Seminar board. Nineteen members filed application for a charter. Regular meetings will be held the second and fourth Wednesday in every month. Mrs. Alta B. Feltham is in charge of organization.

In Gold

All in brown and gold is this attractive costume worn by Shirley Ross, screen player. Dark brown turban of felt is accented with Roman-striped ribbon and massive gold bracelets are worn over gauntlet gloves of brown antelope. Dark brown lightweight wool fashions the straight skirt, and the blouse is gold lame with a high, shirred neckline.

NEW BATHROOM FIXTURES

New fashions in bathroom fixtures combine beauty and luxury with utility. If you want a bathroom in the ultra modern style, consider a basin with neat rounded edges and spigots concealed under a porcelain cover.

Very convenient, too, are basins with a wide shelf at the back for holding cosmetics and chromium towel racks at either side.

For more luxurious bathing are long tubs with wide seats at one end, others with deep shelves around three sides for towels, bath oils and salts.

Two Sets of Shades.

Why not have two sets of shades for your windows? Summer shades soften the glare of the sun. Winter shades should bring a warm glow indoors. Decorators are emphasizing tints of coral from pale pink to deep rose. One manufacturer is featuring new window shades of a warm, rosy color which blends nicely with tones of blue, green, ecru and gold as well as the popular coral hues. The material is closely woven, unfilled and may be washed with a damp cloth or a sponge, lukewarm water and a mild soap.

Women Writers Increase.

Women listed as editors and reporters have increased 185.2 per cent on a proportional basis in the last twenty years, according to a report by Mary E. Pidgeon, chief of the research division of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, and reported in Editor and Publisher.

According to the report, 20 years ago men in editorial and reportorial positions outnumbered women more than seven to one. The percentage in 1930 was slightly more than three to one.

Paints Posies She Grows.

Jane Peterson is a noted painter of flowers. And she grows the flowers she paints. Her wonderful zinnias and peonies grown on her estate, "Rocky Hill," near Ipswich, Mass., attract visitors from far and near. Jane Peterson is Mrs. M. Bernard Philipp in private life, and she recently exhibited her paintings in a one-man show in New York.

Business Women Plan Annual Tea; Committees Appointed

AT THE regular monthly board meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club last night plans for the Annual Tea, which will be held Feb. 20, were made and committees in charge of arrangements were appointed. The meeting was a dinner at the Evergreens.

It was announced that Carl Schodorf, baritone, will be the guest soloist at the affair which is being sponsored by the glee club and which will be given at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Miss Margaret Wheeler, Mrs. Marvel Cowell, and Miss Helyn Brown are in charge of tickets and Miss Theresa Peiffer is making all hotel arrangements. Other committee members are Miss Flora Lentzy and Miss Florence Young, Mrs. Irma Augustine and Miss Arta Cairns, door; Miss Georgiana Chidsey and Miss Jeanette Hoffman, program; Mrs. Christine Fernyak, Miss Grace Bonnell and Miss Esther Snyder, ushers.

Mrs. Carrie Willett and Miss Mae Douglass will pour. The next regular meeting of the organization will be a breakfast Feb. 6 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Those in charge of arrangements are the Misses Catherine Black, Melva Graham, Althea Lorentz, Roma Prosser, Mabel Charles, Pearl Danbeck and Mrs. Cowell.

Plans were made for the meeting of the fifth district of the Business and Professional Women's clubs which will be held here April 24. Miss Bonnell was named general chairman.

* * *

Mrs. John Wickenhiser, Toledo, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. E. A. Blecker, 406 Marion avenue, is returning home today.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties. BUT, if you are crom, lifeless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle of world-famous Pinkham's Compound today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.

Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

Socialite

Love conquers all in the announced engagement of Louise Carnegie Miller, 17, granddaughter of the late steel baron, to J. F. Gordon Thomson, 42-year-old Scot attorney. The girl's family originally opposed marriage because of age disparity.

HAVE RELIGIOUS PROGRAM.

Division B. of the First United Brethren church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Leo Jones, Atcheson avenue. Mrs. J. H. Miller led the devotions which consisted of a paper on "Adoration or Praise the Lord," a talk on "They Call Themselves Friends," and a prayer closed the program. Miss Catherine Stevenson was a guest. The next meeting will be Feb. 23.

George Blecker, Stewart avenue, who has been vacationing in Miami, Florida, is returning home today. Mrs. Blecker is remaining in Miami for a few more weeks.

Evening jackets maintain their popularity, as the best way for varying a simple dinner frock. They are seen in taffeta and lustrous satins, and in printed and hand-blocked linens for cotton evening gowns for resort wear.

CONVERSATIONAL CLUB HAS POETRY SESSION

Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Thornberry, Mrs. Wygant, Mrs. Peirce Give Papers; Discuss Edna St. Vincent Millay, Rudyard Kipling.

POETRY was the topic for study yesterday afternoon when members of the Conversational club met with Mrs. Merritt A. Giles. Mrs. W. W. Willis opened the program with a sketch of the life of Edna St. Vincent Millay. Mrs. Mary B. Thornberry, Mrs. W. E. Wygant and Mrs. Wilmot W. Peirce also read papers.

In her sketch Mrs. Willis sketched the life of the poetess and explained how her writing has changed from the early poems to the present day. She read "Harp Weaver" which won the Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1923 and she also read several selections from the recently published collection "Conversation at Midnight."

Mrs. Thornberry's selections were on miscellaneous poetry and she read from three Mansfield poets who have been recognized. They were Helen Loomis Linham, Ann Dover Abbot and Margaret Tinsley. Mrs. Wygant then read a poem which Mrs. Thornberry had written for a Sunday school class.

"Rudyard Kipling" was the subject of Mrs. Peirce's paper. She read the famous poem, "Gunga Din" and sketched his life. At one point Mrs. Peirce said, "Not only does the poetic work of this master extend over a third of a century, not only does it run parallel to the whole of his prose, but it is closely bound up with the life of England."

From the time that Kipling won the Nobel prize for literature in 1907 he was recognized every year with some singular honor for his literary achievements.

Mrs. Paul Endriss poured tea. Guests of the club were Mrs. Margaret B. Hall, Mrs. William Riester and Mrs. LeMoine Derr.

The next meeting will be a Valentine tea with Mrs. Peirce as hostess. Mrs. L. L. Kochenderfer will review "The Years" by Virginia Woolf.

Family Does Not Approve Of Boy Friend

By VIRGINIA LEE

What should a young man do who is in love, his girl loves him, but her family disapproves of him and, when he goes to the girl's home, ignores him?

This is DOWNHEARTED NED'S problem. He says the only thing the girl's family has against him, so far as he knows, is his job, which, he says, "will not last forever." He does not say what it is, however, except that it is for the government.

The girl loves him he says but won't promise to marry him because she wants to please her family.

It isn't very comfortable for a man to marry into a family which dislikes him, Ned. In fact, it is very uncomfortable. The girl is naturally fond of her people and wants to visit them and to have her husband go with her, and it is pretty hard when they don't want him around It often separates husbands and wives — this family disapproval.

Therefore, I would make every effort to win them over, if I were you. And if you cannot, and the girl doesn't seem inclined to marry you without their approval, I really think it would be the wisest and happinest course for you to separate. Too bad!

* * *

NED has another problem, which concerns a friend of his who is in love with a girl with whom he had a misunderstanding. Since Ned's friend and the girl parted she has been going with another boy. But now said friend wants to come back to the girl, as he has a job and is in a position to marry—which his inability to do before led to part of the misunderstanding — and Ned thinks the girl really prefers his pal. However, she won't go with him for fear of hurting the second youth's feelings.

Ned's friend has tried to go with some other girl, but can't find a girl he likes as well as this one, and Ned and he want to know what he should do about getting her to come back.

That is rather a puzzler, Ned and Friend. It seems to me the only thing you can do is to tell the girl that you want her badly, and will wait for her to straighten matters out with the second boy if she will admit there is some use in waiting. If she won't even give you that hope, better try again to find another girl friend.

When making marmalade or jam, cut rounds of tissue paper the size of the jars. Soak each separately in vinegar and lay close over the top of the preserves. Then cover the top in the usual way. This will prevent its becoming mouldy.

Larger Woman May Find Jacket Dress Smart.

By MARIAN MARTIN

This Jacket Frock from Pattern 9615 is a past-master in the art of flattery! Every detail and line has been carefully calculated to bring out the best points of your figure and to turn you out looking trim and tastefully dressed. You'll be delighted with the height-adding lines formed by the straight center panels and with the flattery of the soft bow and well-set yoke. Rows of tiny buttons on the yoke and at the waist are simple details that carry important emphasis. The straight Tuxedo lines of the jacket "smooth out" your figure and lend a smart tailored air. Wear this jacket frock for formal or informal daytime events. Make it yourself with the Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart which is included to guide you.

Pattern 9615 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 5¼ yards 39 inch fabric for view A.

BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

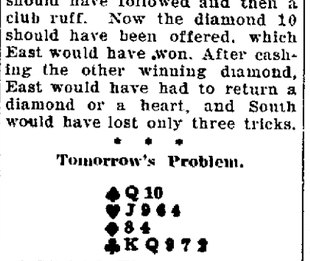
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LIMITING YOUR LOSSES

WHEN YOU hold the ace, jack and ten of a suit, you are in danger of losing two tricks if the king and queen sit over that combination with an extra card to guard them. Even with that situation, you can limit your losses to one trick in the suit if you get that opponent into a position which compels him, after winning one trick, to lead the suit back to you, or leave him no alternative except to lead some other suit which will afford you a "ruff and discard" because you are void in both hands, each possessing one or more trumps.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable).

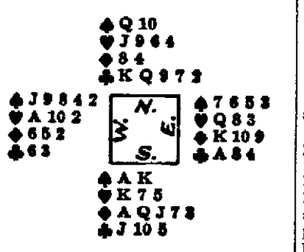
Here South opened with 1-Spade, North raised to three and South bid four.

The club Q was the original lead, which the declarer won with the K in dummy. Three rounds of trumps followed and then the heart 10 was finessed, losing the Q. The diamonds A and K were cashed and a club returned, which South won with the A. Having lost three tricks, South hoped the second heart finesse would be successful. When his hopes were not realized, he found himself one trick short of his contract.

As it was quite evident that the two losing diamonds would be cashed as soon as the opponents gained the lead, South had a sure way to make his contract. After winning the first club trick and drawing trumps, a club to the A should have followed and then a club ruff. Now the diamond 10 should have been offered, which East would have won. After cashing the other winning diamond, East would have had to return a diamond or a heart, and South would have lost only three tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable).

What is South's best procedure to make 3-No Trumps after the lead of the spade 4?

Health Salad.

Combine equal portions of grated raw carrot, shredded lettuce and chopped celery with French dressing or mayonnaise. One cup of each vegetable is sufficient for six servings. Chopped green pepper may be added.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Miss Whitlock had kept her promise to be ready at any minute after daylight for a call from me. Her door swung open almost immediately after my low knock at her door, and though she was not in uniform, her kimona did not detract from the air of being ready for any emergency with which a good trained nurse is always invested.

"I want a sedative," I said, "one that can be given in water, and which will quiet jangled nerves caused by sobbing. It need not be a sleep inducing one. But I need it in a hurry."

She wasted no time in question or explanation, but went directly to her suitcase, took from it a small box, opened it and extracted a bottle of fairly large pellets which she held out to me.

"Dissolve one of these in a quarter cup or less of cold water, and have it drunk immediately. The only taste will be a slightly salty one, agreeable rather than otherwise I take it you don't want me."

Gives Her Sedative.

"Not yet," I said, smiling, as I turned to the door with the bottle. "Go back to sleep. I'm sure I shan't need you until after breakfast. If you'll go down to the dining room at eight o'clock, Katie will see that you have breakfast."

"And how!" I heard her say appreciatively as I closed the door behind me, and hurried to my room where I dissolved the pellet as Miss Whitlock had directed, and carried the glass a quarter filled with a slightly cloudy liquid back to Mary's room.

She was lying on her side, her face turned toward the door, her every muscle tense, her eyes feverish, her face still stained with tears. As I came through the door she relaxed with a little sigh

"I'm so glad you came back," she said as a child might do.

"Foolish baby!" I chided. "I told you I'd be right back. Drink this!"

I slipped my hand under her head, raised it and put the glass to her lips. She drained it obediently, and I put her back against her pillows, setting the glass on a nearby table.

"Now," I said, drawing a low chair to the side of the bed, and stretching out my hand to her, "hold on to me, shut your eyes and relax for a little."

Promises to Stay.

"I don't want to go to sleep," she said rebelliously.

"I don't think you will," I said, making my voice casual, "but if you do, I shall sit right here until you waken."

"Honor bright?" she demanded.

I nodded. "And cross my heart," I added, smiling.

She gave a contented little sigh. "Okay," she said absurdly, and cuddling her hand into mine, closed her eyes.

As I expected, because of her exhaustion, it was but a few minutes before her regular breathing and her relaxed hand dropped from mine, told me that she was asleep. But I kept my promise to her and remained in the chair beside her. Fortunately it was a big, easy one, and by manipulating the cushions I was able to nap lightly myself, although waking every few minutes and bending forward to see whether or not Mary still slept.

Katie News Bearer.

Glad, indeed, was I that I had had the forethought to tell Katie that if I did not come down from Mary's room, she was to ask Mother Graham, our earliest riser, to see that we were not disturbed. I also had left it to Katie to break the news to Mother Graham of Miss Whitlock's arrival. All these precautions, I knew, held the possibility of "ructions" if Katie should display her usual tactlessness in dealing with Dicky's irascible mother. But I told myself crossly that I could not help what might happen outside this room. I was pledged to remain at Mary's side, and I was determined to let nothing interfere with the fulfillment of my promise.

There was only one thing that really bothered me, and that was the remembrance of Dicky's wish to have Mary and me go up to New York on this day instead of the morrow. He wanted me where, in his own parlance, he "could get hold of me in a hurry," and Mary's wan face on the pillow made me doubtful that she ought to stir from the room where she was.

And then, as if my tense thoughts had reached in telepathic fashion to her own brain, she started, opened her eyes, and said tensely:

"Auntie Madge, I just can't stand it here. I've got to get to work. Can't we go to New York right away?"

My Neighbor Says:

It is not necessary to peel early rhubarb before cooking. Cut in very thin slices about an inch thick.

Powdered pumice stone moistened and rubbed over a bath tub will remove stubborn stains without injuring the surface.

Always make it a point to keep your larder supplied with about a dozen cans of soups, meats and fruits. When an unexpected guest arrives for lunch you will then be able to serve a good meal.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, January 28.

RATHER CONFLICTING conditions are read from the current planetary configurations. While business and also employment should thrive, there is a possibility of a bereavement or sorrow. It is likely that there may be a sudden move, journey and other hurried visitation. It might be in connection with romance or adventure There is a menace of strife, dispute or accident. Shun rash and impulsive actions.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of some contradictions. Business and employment are favored. Events of a rather sudden turn in connection with travel, adventure or romance loom. There is augury of sorrow or bereavement. Shun quarrels, recklessness and impetuosity.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, ambitious and well equipped for making a success in business. It may also be adventurous, romantic and scientifically minded.

Sa-a-a-y lady! . . . have you seen the two newest style notes in town? I was snooping at REEDS this morning, and saw the most delicious shades in silk stockings! The warm brilliance of these stockings makes you think they must have captured some of the sunshine from Palm Beach where they are current favorites. The bewitching bright shades are refreshing for immediate wear with blue, green, black and grey —especially since the new suits and dresses being shown for wear now and during early Spring are shorter, with either full, or pencil slim skirts. And later, think how they'll look as the brilliant notes for white and the light pastels—yellow, cornflower blue, light green, and beige — with white, navy or brown accessories. These hose are appropriately named "Tang", "Sun Joy", "Radiance", "Town Toast", "Vagabond", "Commuter" "Glamour" . . They are three thread Van Raalte hose and sell for $1.00 and $1.15. Another style note I found at REED'S are those intriguing 2-tone gloves . . . navy and white . . . brown and beige . . . black and white. Kayser and Van Raalte are the proud inventors of these novelties . . . they are offered to you at $1 a pair. One pair of gloves that will please the woman who delights in "something different" was Kayser made of suede cloth in natural color with gay dashes of bright red and vivid blue . . the tariff is but $1.50, and well worth it, too. Go to REED'S if you're looking for something smart and in advance style to pep up your winter wardrobe.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 4

Who Must File Returns.

Returns are required of every single person who for the year had a gross income of $5,000 or more or a net income of $1,000 or more and of every husband and wife living together who for the year 1937 had an aggregate gross income of $5,000 or more or an aggregate net income of $2,500 or more. Widowers, widows, divorcees, and married persons separated by mutual consent are classed as single persons. The personal exemptions are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families.

Husband and wife living together at the close of the taxable year may include their income in a single joint return or make separate returns of the income of each. If separate returns are filed, one may not report income which belongs to the other, but must report only the income which actually belongs to him. If a joint return is filed, such return is treated as a taxable unit, and the income disclosed is subject to both the normal tax and the surtax.

In order for a return to be classified as a joint return of husband and wife both spouses must have had some income or deductions in the year for which the return is filed, and the return must include the income and deductions of both spouses.

If a joint return is not made by an agent of the taxpayers it must be signed by both husband and wife and sworn to before a proper officer by the spouse preparing the return, or if neither or both prepare the return then by both spouses.

Where separate returns are filed by husband and wife, the joint personal exemption of $2,500 may be taken by either or divided between them in any proportion as agreed upon.

In filing a joint return husband and wife compute the earned income credit in the same manner as in filing separate returns. If taxpayer's net income is not more than $3,000, the entire net income is considered to be earned net income.

Husband and wife may elect each year whether to file a joint return or separate returns. Where, however, joint or separate returns have been filed for a particular year, neither husband nor wife may after the due date of the return file an amended return or returns on a different basis for that year.

QUIRKS IN LAW IRK CALIFORNIA LIQUOR TRADE

Find 'Model' Control Act to Have More Gags Than Movie Script.

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—California's 1937 Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, which was originally hailed as a model for other states to copy, has turned out to be full of more quirks than a movie script is with gags.

During the year the act has been in operation, here are a few of the anomalies that were brought to light and are now being studied by the State Board of Equalization and liquor dealers generally in an effort to reach a common basis of understanding:

Women bartenders can pour whisky neat, beer or wine, but are not allowed to mix a cocktail. For this the reason is not known.

An "off sale" establishment is not allowed to mix two kinds of wine, even if the customer asks for it. The reason for this is that a manufacturer's license is necessary for mixing wines.

Restrictions on Minors.

Minors may sell liquor "off sale," but may not be employed by "on sale" establishments.

Children are welcome in any resort where liquor is sold provided they are not sold drinks. They can, however, line up at the bar with veteran tipplers and order all they want to eat, just so they keep off the drinks.

The words "bar," "saloon," and "cocktail" lounge are barred from advertising signs, but there is nothing to prevent such signs as "Cozy-Wozy Elbow Tippery," and California is filled with a whole nomenclature of words that leave no doubt of the fact the place is a saloon or bar.

Signs outside a resort will provoke legal action if they exceed 720 square inches in size. Why this should be so the law does not state.

Must Serve Meals.

All places selling liquor must serve sufficient food to constitute a meal. If the customer fails to ask for food, that makes no difference just so the establishment always has on hand sufficient food to serve a meal at any hour.

Liquor licenses are only granted after a thorough examination of the fitness of a person to whom they are granted, but he can then transfer them to someone else without any investigation of the second person.

Barmen must have the most expert qualifications for determining what constitutes an intoxicated person, for they are forbidden to sell liquor to anyone with glassy eyes, or other indications of intoxication, provided they are known to be habitual drinkers.

Seeks To Escape Liability In Suits Totaling $375,000

Seeking to avoid responsibility for payment of damage judgments which might be awarded following a traffic accident in Jefferson county last May, the Mercer Casualty company of Celina today had filed a suit in Richland county common pleas court against Russell Plunkett, Mansfield.

In its petition, the plaintiff company says it issued a policy for liability insurance on the automobile driven by Plunkett and one of the cars which figured in an accident in which five persons were killed and two were injured.

Six damage suits totaling $375,000 have been filed in Jefferson county against Plunkett who, the plaintiff contends, was driving a car owned by John Gall of Cream City, O., without the consent of the owner. The insurance policy was issued to Gall.

The insurance firm asks that the policy be held void, and that the court decree that it is not obligated to defend the suits against Plunkett or to pay any judgments which are awarded.

STONE FACE OF ANCIENT TROY SHOWS DISTANT CIVILIZATION

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—University of Cincinnati archaeologists, in announcing the discovery of a huge fortification wall and an expertly sculptured stone face at the site of ancient Troy, have added another link to ancient civilization.

The finds were made during excavations in 1937 and were announced here by Drs. William T. Semple and Carl W. Blegen.

Dr. Blegen, a professor of classical archeology, believed the wall was at least 5,000 years old.

"The wall clearly indicates that even in its earliest period, Troy was a great fortified stronghold of the same character as we have found in later settlements there," he said.

About 500 feet of the wall were uncovered.

Dr. Blegen said the discoveries of the wall and the stone face pushed still farther back "civilization's origin." Heretofore, he said, it had been believed that the first Troy marked the beginning of civilization in this area.

The discoveries, however, both belong to an earlier civilization.

The stone face, he said, probably was contemporary with the sculpture of Egypt from about 3000 to 2600 B. C. Its design and "feeling for style," he asserted, indicated the work was not the first crude attempt of a beginner but the product of an artist with a long cultural tradition behind him.

From this assumption Dr. Blegen inferred that this earliest Troy had a king and royal court to foster the progress of art.

LION UPSETS HOME

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Lion hunting and matrimony do not mix, according to Mrs. Katherine Bruce, wife of California's official lion hunter. In her petition for divorce she charged her husband spends so much time hunting lions all over the state that there isn't enough left for her to make marriage worth while.

HEARS CHARGES

Petit Jury to Decide Cases of 5 Under Indictment.

Charges against five men, four of whom pleaded innocent to indictments returned against them two weeks ago by the county grand jury, will be heard next week by the petit jury which is scheduled to convene Monday morning.

Under the schedule set up by C. A. McKinley, assignment clerk, two cases will be tried Monday and three Tuesday.

Set for trial Monday are cases against Sam Wilson, indicted on a statutory charge, and George Williams, colored, accused of robbery. Atty. Harold Burns will defend Wilson.

Tuesday's cases include grand larceny charges against Russell Sprunger and William Snook, indicted on the accusations of C. H. Varner, who contended the pair had stolen building materials valued at $300. Atty. John F. Kramer will represent both Sprunger and Snook. Also set for hearing Tuesday is a statutory charge against Dwight Berry, who will be defended by Atty. A. S. Beach.

ONTARIO TILT TOPS SCHEDULE FRIDAY

THE only reason a new all-time attendance record for county league games will not be established Friday night is because the Ontario high school plant is not large enough.

Time and again the Springfield township bailiwick has been packed to capacity, and it is more than likely that fans will have to be turned away Friday when the Warriors engage Butler in the highlight of this week's schedule.

Unless weather conditions are such to discourage attendance, the all-time Ontario record will at least be equalled, judging from the interest manifest in the imbroglio.

The game will not definitely decide the storrid championship race, but the team which wins will strengthen its bid for the title materially.

Butler swept into a tie with Coach Orv Kibler's men for the league lead Tuesday night when it pulled through to a thrilling victory over Lucas.

The game is the second of the season between the strong quintets. The first meeting was staged a couple of weeks ago in Butler, and the visitors won the game on the margin provided by a basket registered by an opposing player.

Both quintets will be at their full strength for the tussle, and it is likely that Ontario will enter the fray a slight favorite. The odds will not only be based on the fact that the Warriors are playing on their own court, but because it will be their first game this week while Butler will be making its second appearance.

Madison plays at Union and Lucas performs at Lexington in the other games on the county bill Friday. The Rams are rated a better than slight chance to halt the Indians, and while Lexington will be favored over Lucas, the victory chances of Gil Weikart's athletes cannot be underestimated.

HOSTS TO PLYMOUTH

Sohioans Tackle Oils in Feature Game at Ontario, Saturday.

The Ontario Sohioans will tangle with the Plymouth Oils in the feature game to be played at Ontario high school, Saturday night, Mike Wentz, manager of the Sohioans, announced today.

LOU ROARS AS HE GETS CONTRACT

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—That roar of rage you hear from Hollywood is not Leo, the lion, doing his stuff in the movies, but merely that skootin', shootin' movie cowboy, Lou Gehrig, who has just read his 1938 contract. . . . (Unofficial reports from the coast say the figgers are the same as last year's—which is Ed Barrow's idea of a starter.) . . . How come Pompoon is the new favorite for the Santa Anita handicap. . . . What happened to Seabiscuit?

* * *

A year ago, with the firing of Hunk Anderson still boiling, only nine men reported for spring football practice at North Carolina State. . . . Yesterday 67 turned out, which may well be written in the records as tribute to Coach Doc Newton, who turned in one of the best coaching jobs in the country last year. . . . Marshall Goldberg (who still has another year at Pitt) has had no less than half a dozen coaching offers. . . . His popper doesn't know whether to tell "Biggie" to take one of 'em or go into business. . . . What do you say? . . . Address Sol Goldberg, Elkins, W. Va.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

BASKETBALL ratings are just about as accurate as the arithmetic of a one-year-old.

Prof. E. K. Litkenhous, who compiled football rankings last fall, is now attempting to rate Ohio high school quintets for several papers in the state, but his first batch of percentages merely proved the uselessness of his venture.

Mansfield is rated well enough with a 79.7 percentage, and the positions awarded several other teams in the state cannot be criticized, but the rankings as a whole are pretty bad.

Litkenhous' rating of N. C. O. conference teams are so inaccurate that they are positively ridiculous.

Marion's rating at the top of the N. C. O. with a mark of 69.6 is fair enough, and it might be pretty hard to dispute the 65.9 percentage alloted Mr. Vernon, but Litkenhous fares much worse in his attempt to rank the other teams.

For instance, he puts Shelby down for a 64.3 percentage, the third best in the circuit. Shelby, it might be explained, has not won a game this season, while Bucyrus, which is in second place, is listed with the poorest percentage of any of the N. C. O. clubs. Bucyrus, which has only lost one game, we believe, is down with a 48.2 percentage, one of the very poorest in the rankings.

Then there is the case of Hamilton, Class A state champion, which has won 37 consecutive victories. There is no question that Hamilton is one of the powers on the court, but Litkenhous rates the team 69.7, exactly 10 points below Mansfield, winner of seven out of 12 games.

Mr. Litkenhous, add up all the figures, divide 'em by any number from one to 10, and all you have is a batch of headaches. These basketball teams just can't be rated, even with the Culberson system, Mr. professor.

Williams Clears Up Pittsburgh 'Strike.'

THE much-discussed report that the chief reason when Pittsburgh did not go to the Rose Bowl was because the players put on a sit-down strike for some cash on the barrel head before entraining is cleared up by Joe Williams of the N. Y. World-Telegram. Joe says he made a thorough investigation of the affair and this is what happened:

"One of the players, not even a regular, spoke up at the meeting and said he had a chance to make $100 during the Christmas holidays, and he couldn't afford to lose the money just to make a trip to the Rose Bowl or any other game. 'If I go they've got to reimburse me,' he declared.

"The players crack about wanting to be reimbursed was repeated on the campus. Presently, as is the usual fate of these things, it was blown up to the dimensions of a general strike by a club of mercenaries."

So you see, the reason the Panthers did not go to the Rose Bowl was not because of the so-called strike. The real reason they didn't go is because they were not invited.

Renner Named A. A. U. Leader

Succeeds Cram as Director of Richland County.

D. Donald Renner, widely known Mansfield athletic figure, has been appointed Richland county commissioner of the Ohio district of the A. A. U., it was revealed today in a dispatch from the Ohio offices of Cleveland.

In addition to serving on the Ohio committee, Renner's duties will include the promotion of sanctioned A. A. U. events in the county. He succeeds Donald D. Cram, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

Renner is active in various branches of athletics in the city, and is first vice president and manager of the third annual national Moose lodge bowling tournament to be conducted in the city in March.

Further Plans For Ice Meet

No Postponement Planned Unless Snow Continues.

Preparations for the grade school ice carnival scheduled at North Lake park Saturday morning are continuing despite inclement weather, Harry Mehock, assistant athletic director of Mansfield high school, who is director of the meet, said today that the event will not be postponed unless present snow storms continue.

Mehock stated that the snow now covering the ice may be removed quickly for the meet if the weather conditions are such to permit the competition.

All of the elementary schools in the city will be represented in the carnivals. Entries may be made with principals at the schools, Mehock said.

RULES OUT CASH AWARDS

St. Andrews Says Money Putting Prizes Breach of Amateur Code.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — (AP) — The championship committee of The Royal and Ancient Golf club today ruled that playing for money in prize putting competitions was a breach of amateur status and that in the future anyone playing under such conditions will forfeit his amateur standing.

The giving of vouchers also was ruled objectionable. The announcement said the club believes golfing prizes should be tangible, lasting mementos and should be inexpensive.

* * *

The United States Golf association, at its annual meeting Jan. 20, considered the problem of suitable amateur prizes. The executive committee reported it had been concerned about reported infringements of the amateur code in a number of ways, such as giving of prizes that are more than symbolic and therefore are inappropriate for amateur golf."

PYTLAK REJECTS CONTRACT

DROP MEET TO LEHMAN

Mansfield high school swimmers showed considerable improvement in their dual meet with Canton Lehman in the Mansfield pool yesterday, but dropped two relay events to lose to the visitors, 38 to 28.

Paced by Uhrich and Roderich, national Y. M. C. A. champions, the visiting Lehman mermen gained the midway in the meet.

Roderich won the 200-yard free style and anchored the 200-yard free-style relay, while Uhrich annexed the 100-yard backstroke and competed with the 150-yard medley relay team.

Mansfield registered three firsts. Baerrens again won the 50-yard free-style. Shively won the diving competition.

50-yard free-style—Baerrens, M, won; Thomas, C, 2; McGinty, M, 3. Time 27.5.

100-yard breast stroke—Shively M, won; Crim, C, 2; Schmucker, C, 3. Time 1.25.

200-yard free-style—Roderick, C, won; Baerrens, M, 2; Eichorn, C, 3. Time: 2.15.6.

100-yard back stroke—Uhrich, C, won; Allen, M, 2; Willard, M, 3. Time: 1:06.

100-yard free-style — Stires, C, won; McCartney, M, 2; Betts, M, 3. Time: 1:03.10.

Diving—Shaw, M, won; Schmucker, C, 2; Cox, M, 3.

150-yard medley relay—Won by Canton (Schmucker, Uhrich, Crim and Eichorn). Time: 1.25

200-yard free-style relay—Won by Canton (Straus, Thomas, Stires and Roderich). Time 1:52.

Stars In Last Simpson Game

Rose Scores 16 Points In Farewell Victory.

Don Rose distinguished himself in his last game in Simpson junior high school livery yesterday as he led the Bulldog varsity to a one-sided 40 to 17 victory over the Willard Junior high on the Simpson court.

Rose, who will be promoted to Senior high school next week scored 16 points in his final appearance with Simpson, which held a 25 to 6 lead at the half.

Coach Bob De Haven's club will continue its schedule Friday when it goes to Galion junior high for a game.

Climaxing their scoring spree with 24 points in the fourth period, the First M. E. church courtiers rolled up one of the highest totals of the season as they walloped United Presbyterians, 60 to 21, in the Class A Church league at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The victory was the ninth straight for the undefeated Methodists, led by Wert and Brown, who scored 22 and 18 points, respectively. The winners held a 26-11 lead at the half as they completed the first round of play.

Thanks to St. Pauls 29 to 13 victory over Mayflower, the First Lutherans gained an undisputed grip on second place by whipping Park Avenue Baptist, 37 to 22. Mayflower's defeat enabled Episcopal, which won over St. Johns, 25 to 23, to tie for third place. Temple Emanuel defeated Central M. E., 25 to 22, in the other game.

Renew Rivalry In Loop Game

Hedges, Simpson Cagemen Tangle at Y Friday.

Hedges Junior high school cagers will be offered a chance to stop the victory march of their fellow townsmen of Simpson Friday evening when they collide in a Bi-County league contest on the Y. M. C. A. court.

Simpson won the first game played between the two teams, but Hedges has shown considerable improvement, and should offer the undefeated league leaders some trouble. Hedges is in second place.

Shelby plays at Perrysville in the other bill on the league tilt

SUPPLIES SPLIT GAMES

Win First Game of Twin-Bill With Weller Ex-Hys at Union.

The Mansfield Athletic Supplies and Weller Ex-Hys split a double-header at Union high school last night. The Mansfield team won the first game, 26 to 22, but dropped the second, 37 to 33, as Oswalt tallied 16 points for the Weller team.

The Metcalf Pure Oils and Sonny Meder of the Miller Oldsmobiles produced the best scores in the City Class A league at the Meder alleys last night.

The second place Oils pushed out a 3140 total to set the team pace, while young Meder blasted a 693 to lead the individuals.

Farrell Hipp put together scores of 246, 202 and 237 for a 685 to lead the Oilmen to three victories over the Meder Recreation, which came through with a 2798. The Oils comined games of 1074, 988 and 1078.

Winnie Cleckner contributed a 666 total, which included a 243 and 236, to the Oils' total, and Mike Meder shot a 632 and Art Thomas collected 610 pins.

Sonny Meder led the Oldsmobiles to a 2996 total, which was good for a sweep over the Roma Lunches. He started out with a 269 and followed with a 236 and 188 as the Oldsmobiles retained their two and a half game lead over the Oilmen. Brig Young rolled a 620 for the Motors.

The Roma Lunches, who rolled out a 2890, were led by Bernat, 620; Ritter, 607, and Selby, 601.

In the other match, the Lumbermens Mutuals cracked out a 2867 to annex three wins at the expense of the Liederkranz club.

Tom Henrich Denies Offer of $9,000.

MASSILLON — (U.P.) — Tommy Henrich, who returned an unsigned contract to the champion New York Yankees, today said he had done so because he wasn't quite satisfied with their offer."

Henrich denied he had been offered $9,000 as reported by Yankee officials and intimated that his 1937 salary was nearer $5,000 than the $7,500 he was supposed to have received. "I wasn't quite satisfied with the salary offered me for 1938," Henrich said. "But I don't anticipate any trouble. I did not ask for a $1,500 raise over last year as reported in New York, and I believe that we can come to an agreement without any difficulty."

SELLERS STEP CAREFULLY IN QUIET MARKET

Wall Street Appears Confused Over Administration's Stand on Wages, Prices.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market rallied quietly today after a moderate recession at the opening.

While volume was restricted, recoveries running to a point or more were distributed widely near the second hour. Issues unable to make the grade were mostly only small fractions in arrears.

Although Wall Street apparently still was confused over the administration's stand on wages and prices, the possibility government spending would be expanded as a means of taking up the business slack tended to make sellers step carefully.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. Foreign securities, down at the start, did better later.

A buoying influence was seen in the statement of Joseph P. Kennedy, former maritime commission head and new ambassador to Great Britain, that contemplated plans for rebuilding the merchant marine alone should keep the country's shipyards busy for the next two or three years.

Noted were estimates last week's freight loadings, to be published tomorrow, were about even with the previous week. Roads serving industrial centers suffered sharpest traffic declines from the 1937 period.

1,831,961 Working, 64,524 Over Previous Week.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Works Progress relief rolls reached 1,831,961 for the week ending Jan. 22—a new high for the fiscal year and an increase of 64,524 over the previous week.

The increase for the week was the largest since inception of the current upward trend in relief, started during October with beginning of the business recession. The total exceeded last year's high level of 1,450,101, reached last Oct. 2, by slightly more than 400,000.

The relief total at the end of last week was less than 100,000 under the peak predicted by administrator Harry Hopkins last fall.

URGES STOCK EXCHANGE SHIFT

Committee Proposes Salaried President, Elimination of Board of Governors.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Complete reorganization of the New York stock exchange, with a salaried president in administrative control, and an end of the "self-perpetuating" board of governors, was proposed today by the committee for the study of organization recently appointed by Charles R. Gay, president of the exchange.

The report, which meets many of the suggestions made by Chairman William O. Douglas of the SEC, was presented simultaneously to Gay in New York and Douglas in Washington.

A. A. Berle, jr., a member of the committee, made the presentation to Douglas.

Proceeding from the premise that "the public interest is the paramount consideration," the committee said it is "apparent to us that the organization of the stock exchange should be revised to accord with changing times and conditions."

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Toledo Pastor on Program at Lutheran Mission.

Dr. George Miley, pastor of Augsburg Lutheran church, Toledo, will be the speaker at the third session of the Lutheran teaching mission at 7:30 p. m. today at the First Lutheran church.

Dr. Miley will speak on "The Practices of the Church." The mission began Tuesday evening and will continue through Friday, under the auspices of the evangelism committee of the United church.

Assisting tonight will be Rev. Herman Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. J. David Mumford, assistant pastor of the First Lutheran church. Rev. Carl Driscoll of Lucas, and Rev. C. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church.

Special music will be furnished by the choir of the First Lutheran church directed by L. A. Cook at the final session tomorrow night. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, will speak.

SETS DATE FOR ADVISORY MEET

Bates Calls Session For Feb. 7 After Two Postponements.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates will hold his Advisory council meeting on Monday, Feb. 7, at municipal court room, he said today.

The date of the meeting has been set twice and has been changed because of other important civic events; first on Jan. 25, which was the night of the Civic Music concert; and again for Feb. 1, which is the date of the second Community play, "Kind Lady."

Bates will ask a number of persons interested in the juvenile delinquency problem in the city to meet with his advisory council.

Do Not Embarrass Yourself

It is very embarrassing to borrow money from a friend or relative particularly if you find later on that you are sick or out of employment and cannot pay when due.

They are not in the business of lending—do not wish to wait or else need the money very much. Then if you have not established yourself some place where emergency funds can be gotten you are in a serious predicament.

Establish yourself with THE MANSFIELD PROVIDENT CO. We fully understand and can carry you through such an emergency.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Humor It!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold."

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want.

They are made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

They are internal in effect and do four important things.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets are a proven preparation. They have been on the market over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets come in 35c and 60c sizes. The 60c size is the better "buy." It gives you almost 20 per cent more for your money.

When you feel a cold coming on—don't wait—don't procrastinate—but go right to your druggist and get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets).

Say "No" to substitutes!

PROBE CRASH

Hamilton Authorities Seek Cause Of Bus-Truck Collision.

HAMILTON —(U.P.)— The collision of a bus and truck south of here last evening, in which three of the 21 bus passengers were injured, was investigated by Butler county authorities today.

Mrs. Susie Snider, 76, Port Clinton, suffered a wrenched back and right leg. Mrs. A. L. Bernstein, Detroit, had a nose fracture, and Miss Roselyn Bernstein, her daughter, a bruised eye.

BREAK IN COLD DUE TOMORROW

Drifts Still Block Roads to Rural Schools, Pupils Get Second Holiday.

18 employes, were hauling the surplus snow away today.

Slowed to a snail's pace by the snow, traffic was light throughout the county and no major accidents were reported. Garages had numerous calls to rescue stranded cars from snow drifts.

Temperatures in Mansfield, which dropped to three above zero yesterday, were eight degrees higher this morning, Observer Enos Sprunger reported. Yesterday, however, the mercury got no higher than 17 and the average of 14 degrees for the past 24 hours was nine degrees below normal. It was 16 above at noon today.

The coldest place in the nation was Bemidji, Minn., where it was 20 below zero. In most sections of the middle west temperatures moderated considerably and in Ohio readings ranged from 10 to 15 degrees above zero this morning.

Michigan, hardest hit by the widespread blizzard and cold wave, contributed three deaths to the total of nine reported in the nation as a result of the frigid weather and floods.

33 Stranded In School.

The crews of six snow plows, unreported in western Michigan since yesterday morning, were sought by rescue parties which battled towering snow drifts. Thirty-three boys were stranded in a school house near Ironwood, Mich.

Train and bus service in the northern half of the state was suspended and many smaller cities and villages were without communication. At least a fourth of the state's trunk line roads were still blocked today, reports said. Dairy men supplied milk only to hospitals and to homes with babies. Snow was 40 inches deep in the northern part of Michigan.

The cold reached into Mexico and Florida, with only the Far West and sections of New England escaping the wintry blasts. Snow flurries were reported at Ocala, Fla., about one-third of the way down in the state. Freezing temperatures prevailed in Louisiana and Georgia.

The eastward movement of the cold wave and blizzard is expected to permit the air lines to resume regular schedules by tomorrow. Fair and continued cold weather was predicted for Ohio and other mid-western states tonight with rising temperatures due Friday.

Says It's Resident's Job to Clean Walks

If you want the snow removed from your sidewalks you'll have to do it yourself, it's not the city's job, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert pointed out today.

Styert made the statement after his office and the city engineer had been kept busy answering telephone calls from residents who wanted their walks cleaned.

"A city ordinance requires that all sidewalks be cleaned off every day before 9 a. m. by the persons residing on the property, whether they are renters or property owners," Styert said.

The old city snow plow which was used in the past to clean walks was discontinued when the ordinance placing the responsibility on residents went into effect, Styert added.

JURY HEARS SIX MORE, RECESSES

Continues Investigation of Financial Transactions at Reformatory.

Martin L. Davey after the Scripps-Howard papers had carried a series of articles in which it was charged that paroles could be "bought" in Ohio.

Davey instructed Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy to conduct the investigation. A special grand jury in Franklin county (Columbus) was summoned and is now in recess. The Richland county grand jury is the second to be impanelled, and Duffy has indicated that grand juries will be called in other counties to investigate the charges.

Keenan, who has been reporting the Richland county grand jury investigation, was in the jury room only a short while. When he came out, he said the grand jury had called for documents in his possession concerning the paroling of inmates and prisoners. He said he expected to testify again this afternoon.

O. F. Carver, assistant superintendent of the reformatory, was recalled to the stand after Keenan finished his preliminary testimony.

Preceding Keenan to the stand were Herschel Harpster, 26 North Adams street, who operated a farm near Lucas during the years with which the grand jury is now concerned.

Also among this morning's witnesses were George B. Garrison, assistant cashier of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank. He was questioned about reformatory bank records which had been subpoenaed yesterday. After being in the grand jury for a short time, he returned to the bank for additional records.

He was followed by Charles W. Fuchs, assistant cashier of the Citizens National bank, who was questioned about reformatory accounts with his bank.

Owen was in the grand jury room with records almost all of yesterday afternoon. No other witnesses were heard.

Tobacco Experts Smoke Luckies 2 to 1

Lee Moore—who judged 1½ million lbs. of tobacco in 3 weeks—explains why so many independent experts "go for" Luckies

HAVE YOU HEARD THE CHANT OF THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER?
Listen to "Your Hollywood Parade"

"Your Hit Parade"—Sat., CBS, 10 p. m., E. S. T.
"Your News Parade"
Mon. thru Fri., CBS, 12:15 p. m., E. S. T.
"Melody Puzzles"
Mon., NBC, 8:00-8:30 p. m., E. S. T.

"MY LIFE has been tobacco," says Mr. Moore. "I started as a tobacco farmer. Then, in 1909, I became an independent buyer—in 1920 a warehouseman—and since 1927 I've had my own tobacco warehouse in Georgia.

"It's a matter of dollars and cents to me to be able to judge tobacco quickly and accurately. Now I know exactly what kind of tobacco Lucky Strike buys. So I've smoked Luckies for 11 years."

This is the honest opinion of an impartial expert who sells tobacco to all cigarette manufacturers, but who is not connected with any. And there are many other such experts who agree with Mr. Moore.

Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts—not connected with any cigarette manufacturer—Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

'TROJAN HORSE' OLD STORY WITH MODERN TOUCH

Christopher Morley's First Novel In Five Years on Library's Booklist.

Christopher Morley has taken an old story and brought it up to date in "Trojan Horse," his first novel in five years. Centering the story on the romance of Troilus and Cressida, on the old Trojan and Greek background as related in the siege of Troy, he has added a few modern gestures, such as football tactics on the battlefield, gas mask drills and radio commentators. The result is a highly amusing and rather pathetic tale which shows that human love and infidelity are as old as the human race. "Trojan Horse" is one of the books on the new fiction list at the Public Library this week.

"The Picnic" by Martin Boyd is an entertaining novel of life in an English village. The events center around a widow, her two teen-age sons, her sister-in-law, who came from Australia to visit and who decides to purchase Plumridge Hall, their ancestral home, and settle there. There are excellent characterisations of the various types of persons to be found in an English village.

"Little Children" by William Saroyan is a collection of short stories written about experiences of his boyhood. The style is simple, and the stories read very much as a small boy might tell them, expressing the mental torture which teasing brings, the satisfaction of knowing other people's secrets, and many other emotions peculiar to boys.

Other New Fiction.

Four other new books on the fiction list are "Four Men and A Prayer" by Garth; "Fine To Look At," Kerr; "Short Stories of Katherine Mansfield," compiled; and "Quick-Fire Hombre" by Nye.

When so many philosophers and psychologists warn that human beings, especially Americans, need to lessen their pace and take time to enjoy wholeheartedly the simple pleasures of life, Dr. Lin Yutang's book, "The Importance of Living," is truly opportune. In interesting essays he discusses the many possibilities for spiritual and physical contentment which lie in common, trivial things and habits. His ideas delve deeply into moral questions also.

"Man, Bread and Destiny," by Clifford Cook Furnas and his wife, traces the evolution of man's diet from caveman to the present, and its influence on racial and individual development, upon the fate of the nations and upon the movement of peoples over the earth.

"Lost Empire," by Hector Chevigny, brings to light a portion of little known history, the life and records of Nikolai Petrovich, the guiding intelligence behind the Russian-American company, a fur trading enterprise.

Other non-fiction this week is: "The March of Science" by Haig Gordon Garbedian; "Electricity: for Use or for Profit?" by Ostrolenk; "Story of Bridges," Black; "Columbia Manual of Knitting and Crocheting," compiled by Barnes; "World History of Arts," Cheyney; "Furnishing the Colonial and Federal House," McClelland; "Down the River," Bates and Parker; "Thames Portrait," Robertson; "Bermudiana," Williams; "Aaron Burr," a Biography," Schachner; "Memoirs of a Spanish Princess" by H. R. H. Infanta Eulalia; "Virginia; the Old Dominion," Andrews; and "Ohio, a Four Vol. Reference Library on the History of a Great State" edited by Fess.

FAT WOMEN SMOTHER IN TIGHT GIRDLES

Tight girdles and stiff foundation garments actually make many women look fatter. Instead of squeezing your fat, why don't you try to get rid of it? Why not have a slim, lovely, youthful figure that needs but little girdle control?

Thousands of overweight women have found that the Marmola way is the easy way to get rid of ugly fat. Just take 4 Marmola Prescription Tablets each day, and in place of starchy foods like potatoes and pastries, eat more salads, fruits, green vegetables, and go slow on fatty meats. That's simple, isn't it? Yet what a difference Marmola and this little change in your diet may make in your weight. Losses of 5 to 8 pounds a week have been reported in many cases from this simple, easy method of reducing. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same element prescribed by many doctors in treating their fat patients. Get a box at your druggist today and send that ugly fat on its way.

MUSEUM PARTY OFF TO ARCTIC

Young Pittsburgh Scientists Leave on 1,000-Mile Trip To Frozen North.

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—The never-ending search for specimens of rare animals and bird life has sent two youthful Pittsburgh scientists on a 1,000 mile journey to the frozen north for the Carnegie Museum here.

The scientists, Dr. Arthur C. Twomey, 29, ornithologist, and J. Kenneth Doutt, 35, mammalogist, left here early in January for Ungava land, situated on the barren shores of Canada's Hudson Bay, where they will remain eight months.

The experience will be nothing new to the two men, because each has made several trips to the northland. The only drawback is that their wives will have to remain at home.

"That is the only bad feature of the trip," the scientists smiled. "Our wives are almost as interested as ourselves in this opportunity to study the animal life and natives in this region."

The first stage of the trip, that from Pittsburgh to Moose Factory, "the end of steel" in the St. James Bay region, will require only three days via modern methods of travel.

But it will require an additional 30 days for them to reach their northern base, only 500 miles from the railroad terminus, because they must cover that leg of the trip by dog team with Eskimo guides.

After establishing headquarters at a small Hudson Bay Company post on the Great Whale River, Dr. Twomey and Doutt will explore the territory for miles around. They will penetrate 200 miles inland the first month of their stay.

MAP NEW FLOOD PLAN COSTING 100 MILLIONS

House Group Weighs Program For Walls, Levees In Ohio Valley Region.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House flood control advocates disclosed today plans for a new $100,000,000 program of protection from high waters in the Ohio river valley.

It would involve a federal appropriation of approximately $75,000,000 for construction of flood walls and levees and a local expenditures of some $20,000,000 for property rights.

House members who declined to be quoted by name said the program would provide protection for nearly two-score cities and towns.

Fifteen communities in the valley benefited by a similar $24,877,000 program authorized by congress last year and approved by President Roosevelt. The projects were selected on recommendation of the army engineers.

Engineers to Decide.

The new program would have Chairman Whittington (D., Miss.) of the house flood control committee submit to the engineers the list of other communities seeking levees and flood walls. The engineers would be asked to study the list and determine which of the projects they could approve.

Proponents said officials and civic organizations of communities in which projects would be located had given assurances property rights would be provided locally if congress authorized the program.

The projects for which estimates have been made on federal and local expenditures include:

Pittsburgh Golden Triangle $3,150,000 and $1,650,000: West Bridgewater, Pa., $885,000 and $126,000; Wellsburg, W. Va., $2,405,000 and $225,000: Martins Ferry, O., $1,840,000 and $220,000; Bellaire, O., $3,000,000 and $370,000; Wheeling, W. Va.,-Warwood, $680,000 and $67,000; business district $1,000,000 (no local estimate); Wheeling Island breakwater $500,000 and $50,000; Wheeling Island dredging $500,000 (no local estimate); South Wheeling $4,435,000 and $500,000.

Benwood, W. Va., $1,300,000 and $160,000,000: New Martinsville, W. Va., $1,707,000 and $230,000; Parkersburg, W. Va., business district, $2,300,000 and $100,000; Middleport, O., $2,107,000 and $150,000; Huntington, W. Va.-Guyandotte $2,750000 and $500,000: Westmoreland $3,250,000 and $800,000.

New Boston, O., $2,144,000 and $360,000: Portsmouth, O., $3,996,000 and $24,000; Ashland, Ky., business district $2,441,000 and $640,000: steel plant $1,500,000 (no local estimate).

Supreme Court To Hear Plea Of Delaware Theft Suspect.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio supreme court today agreed to hear on its merits a case involving the conviction of John Duffy, of Youngstown, in connection with the robbery on Nov. 12, 1936, of the Anderson clothing store at Delaware.

Duffy was convicted by the Delaware county common pleas court but the court of appeals reversed the conviction and remanded the case for a new trial.

problem to work out with the manufacturer."

He said the plant had been approved for a certain type of operation, but that reports indicated that the type of operation was not being followed. He would not elaborate on that statement.

McDill also inspected the three pumps which lift the sewage from the low level line to the primary digestion tanks. These pumps were installed as the non-clogging type, but Sotherland has reported continual clogging. New teeth have been installed on a comminuter, which breaks up solid sewage, and that helped the situation for a time, Sotherland related, but the teeth are now in need of replacement. The company has informed the city that new teeth would be needed twice a year, with the cost set at $180.

Still Clogging.

The inspection showed that one of the three pumps, on which a change had been made, was operating without clogging but the driving motor was being overloaded. Sotherland reported that two other similar pumps were still clogging and that the company had made no effort to remedy the defect.

When McDill and the city officials met with Sotherland at the plant, just before the inspection began, Sotherland told McDill that he wanted to co-operate with the state health department in the operation of the plant, but felt that he had not been personally contacted sufficiently by the department. McDill agreed that Sotherland was correct on that point.

Commenting on complaints made to the state health department that the plant would not handle a capacity load, McDill said reports available to him showed that never since the plant began operations last March, had a capacity load been sent through it.

At the conclusion of the inspection; Hunter said he would hold up any action on the final payment until he received McDill's report. The final payment is $6,089. due the Lewisohn company, Cleveland, and is due Feb. 6.

He who gets slapped may win the beauty queen. Harry Neigher, newspaper columnist at Bridgeport, Conn., did. When Marion Bergeron was selected as the most beautiful girl in America in 1933, Neigher commented in the newspaper: "It's too bad a sweet kid like that should be exhibiting her torso in a cheap vaudeville show." For that, Miss Bergeron gave Neigher a good slap in the face. But the slap led to romance and the two will get married in June.

CONFERS TODAY

Roosevelt Meeting Expected to Shape TVA Policies.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A clear-cut policy on purchase of private utility systems by the Tennessee Valley authority appeared likely to develop from a conference this afternoon between President Roosevelt and Gov. Gordon Browning of Tennessee.

Whether it would follow the line of federal-state co-operation advocated by Browning was uncertain. Browning's proposal already has brought some unfavorable reaction here.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.), congressional sponsor of the TVA, said he thought purchases should be handled by the agency without state participation, but he expressed willingness to consider the Tennessee governor's proposal carefully.

Gets Ready For Parade During Hitler's Visit In May.

ROME —(AP)— Premier Mussolini, delighted at having taught 10,000 Fascist militiamen the German goosestep, today jumped from a reviewing stand and goosestepped behind the parading soldiers.

This was part of preparation for the state visit of Chancellor Hitler next May. Mussolini wanted to parade goosestepping troops in Hitler's honor and today inspected the chosen units after 15 days' training.

He decided they had learned the trick German stride well enough for a show for Hitler, renamed it the "Roman step" and indicated it might become the regular step for Fascist parades.

He had been with the highway department since 1910.

LOSES CASE

Knox County Widow Denied Damages In Mate's Death.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A building which obscures railroad tracks adjacent to a plant where a worker is employed, is not a hazard of his occupation, the Ohio supreme court in effect held today in a Knox county case.

Anna Champion, widow of George Champion, deceased employe of the Sun-Glo Industries plant at Fredericktown, brought suit in the Knox county common pleas court against the State Industrial commission to collect compensation for her husband's death.

Her husband was killed Oct. 23, 1935 when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train near the plant. She claimed that a plant building obscured a track over which he was passing in the automobile.

The Knox county common pleas court found for the industrial commission, and the Court of Appeals upheld this contention.

GETS COMMISSION

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Stanley F. Reed, newly appointed member of the supreme court, received his commission from President Roosevelt today. The former solicitor general told reporters he expected to take his oath when the court meets next Monday.

STATE IGNORES BAN ON SPRING FISHING; NEW BASS LIMIT SET

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio sportsmen today saw early summer fishing expeditions ahead after the state conservation council ignored a proposal to ban all inland fishing in Ohio during the closed season on bass from May 1 to June 15, inclusive.

The council, however, adopted at its January meeting yesterday several regulations designed to protect fish during the spawning season. They included:

Reduction in the minimum length of bass taken in inland and Lake Erie waters from 11 to 10 inches and in the bag limit from eight to five.

A limit of 30 inches on the length of muskellunge, previously unlimited.

Prohibition of fishing within certain distances below dams in the state.

Prohibition of bait taking after March 1 in approximately one-third the state's streams.

Council members said bass regulations were changed after reports were received saying that many undersized bass, caught by fishermen, were injured and died after being released.

The regulations on dam fishing banned operations between Feb. 1 and June 15, inclusive, within 1,000 feet below all dams in the Muskingum conservancy district and the six mile dam on the Walhounding river and 300 feet below all dams on the Muskingum river.

Between May 1 and June 15, fishing is prohibited within 300 feet below the Englewood dam on the Stillwater river, Highland Park dam on the Miami river and the Steele dam on the Mad river.

BARES $5,000 'COMMISSION' ON STATE GAS

Former Head of Oil Company Says 'Sponsorer' Needed to Sell to Ohio.

campaign fund before 1935, admitted that he received commissions on sales made by Columbia through him to the state in 1935 and 1936.

After securing Weil's testimony during which frequent complaints were made that questions asked invaded his "private life," the committee promised further disclosures in examination of the two officers of the old Columbia Refining Co.

James Metzenbaum, Cleveland, special counsel for the investigators, introduced as evidence a photostatic copy of a check for $255.38 payable to Weil and signed by company officers. He said it represented one of a series of payments made to Weil during 1935, 1936 and 1937. During the hearing it was brought out that Weil was the second largest contributor in support of Governor Davey's campaign for re-election.

On advice of his counsel, Charles S. Druggan, Columbus, Weil at first refused to answer whether he collected a "commission" from the Columbia Refining Co.

Freshens Memory.

When the photostatic copy of the check was submitted, he recalled that he had collected from the Columbia firm on sales to the highway department.

He refused to answer whether he had "split" the money with anyone and what amount he had received.

Druggan, also counsel for Francis W. Poulson, Democratic state chairman, when the latter appeared before the committee recently, said he advised his client not to answer because the queries were improper.

"I regard these questions as an inquisition into Mr. Weil's private affairs," the attorney said.

"The people of Ohio have the right to know if the state is paying excessive prices on the commodities it buys because firms selling to the state have to pay 'commissions,'" Metzenbaum replied.

The committee also heard from Glenn Horn, state purchasing agent, that he "would not attempt to justify" the state's purchase of "strip" coal for the Cleveland state hospital at $1.60 a ton while the city of Cleveland paid only 88 cents a ton for the same coal.

Horn, explaining the coal was purchased through the firm of Maher and North, Cleveland wholesalers, said he would demand an explanation and probably would refuse to deal with the company in the future.

He apologized for a previous statement that the committee investigated only "the things it was interested in exposing." Horn said he previously had not known the coal was of the "strip" variety.

Regarding the coal purchases, Horn earlier had said the price of $1.60 a ton was paid "so that miners and the operators will get a fair price." Metzenbaum sought to show however, that the wholesale firm which charged the state government $1.60 a ton only paid 92 cents for it.

"Do you think it is fair," he asked, "That the state should pay $1.60 for coal that cost the wholesaler only 92 cents?"

"You know I don't," the witness answered. He also said that if the figures quoted by Metzenbaum were correct, the payment of $1.60 "of course" would not help the miners.

Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, R., Washington, asked Horn if he "realized the state was cheated out of about $7,000 on this purchase."

"I guess that's right," Horn replied, adding that he had not known what type of coal was delivered at the $1.60 price. He said bids were not taken on the purchase.

"As a matter of fact," Metzenbaum stated, "That coal order was handed out on a platter in the unbusinesslike hope that the company would deliver a satisfactory product."

Round Table Discussion Features Session At Church.

A round table discussion featured the monthly meeting of the C. H. Huston Sunday school class of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night in the church parlors.

Following the business session and the discussion period, dart ball was played by two teams captained by Charles Abele, and Perry Bush. Guy E. Shawk, president, presided at the meeting.

Refreshments were served following the meeting. The next meeting of the class is scheduled to be held Feb. 25.

Investigator Says Death In Insane Hospital Kept Secret.

MEDFIELD, Mass. —(AP)— A fourth killing at the Medfield state hospital for the insane was revealed today by an investigator for State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley.

The investigator, James Nawn, reported Joseph Burdzik of New Bedford, was killed in an attack Jan. 18, 1934. Nawn, who said he could find no record that the killing was made public, named another inmate as the slayer.

KILLS GAG RULE

Senate Rejects Proposal to Limit Lynch Bill Debate.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate killed today a proposal for drastic limitation of debate on the Anti-Lynching bill, against which southern senators have been filibustering since the session started.

The vote against debate limitation, or cloture, gave new encouragement to the southern bloc that the Anti-Lynching measure would be shelved.

Imposition of coture, which would have limited further speechmaking against the bill to one hours for each senator, was requested in a petition signed by 17 senators.

Although supporters of the Anti-Lynching proposal said they would seek to keep it before the senate, opponents were expected to make an effort to sidetrack it soon.

Engine Spark Plus Bird Nest Equals Fire In Building

A spark from a passing engine lighting in a deserted bird's nest in the eaves of a building owned by the Pennsylvania railroad company, last evening caused Central fire station to make a run to Oak street.

The fire, which caused only slight damages before it was extinguished, is believed to have started in a dry bird's nest in the eaves, as the roof was covered with snow, and to have crept under the roof to the inside of the attic over the frame office building.

Two alarms were answered by station number four, one in the Mitch Paint shop, 235 Newman street, where fire from an undetermined cause slightly damaged the inside of the building; and one to the residence of John Knapp, 90 Newman street, where a defective chimney threatened to set fire to the roof.

BEST YEAR

Galion Metallic Vault Firm Has Annual Meeting.

GALION—The best year in its history in both volume of sales and profits, was reported at the annual meeting of the Galion Metallic Vault company and its subsidiary, the Hercules Steel Products company, Wednesday night. In December the company paid an 8 per cent dividend on common stock, and a liberal amount was added to the surplus account.

The following directors were re-elected by stockholders: L. M. Liggett, E. P. Monroe, F. S. Wisterman, S. H. Sampliner, G. W. Nickels, D. G. Strother and J. W. Wisterman.

The re-election of the following officers also took place: president and treasurer, L. M. Liggett; secretary and general manager of sales, E. P. Monroe; vice president, F. S. Wisterman; assistant secretary and sales promotion manager, D. G. Strother; superintendent, Fred Biszantz.

DIES IN DAYTON

BUCYRUS — Commitment services will be held at Oakwood cemetery for Mrs. Emma L. Fout, 59, former Bucyrus resident who died at her home in Dayton, Monday. Mrs. Fout left Bucyrus nearly 30 years ago. Time of the service has not been set.

Born in North Robinson, the deceased was the daughter of William and Mary Stanley Smith. Her husband, James Fout, died in 1934. Survivors include a daughter, Bernadine, at home, one brother, Earl E. Smith, of North Robinson and two sisters, Mrs. S. W. Christman and Mrs. Idella App, both of North Robinson.

Farmers From Area Elected By Ohio Wool Growers.

Farmers from three northcentral Ohio counties played important parts yesterday in the program at the annual Farmers' Week at Ohio State university.

E. P. Clingan, of Weller township, and George Schifer of Bucyrus were elected directors of the Ohio Wool Growers Co-operative association, and Kenneth Thomas, Ashland, won the Future Farmers of America public speaking contest held in connection with Farmers' week. Young Thomas will represen Ohio in the North Atlantic regional competition.

Principal speaker yesterday was Louis J. Taber, national Grange master, who called for a "good farm bill," government economy and United States neutrality.

"There is but one way to remain secure in peace—keep our heads, provide adequate defense and give thought and patiotic consideration to problems at home," Taber declared. "Let's attend to our own business while the world does its fussing," he added.

COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

Fumes From Gas Stove Blamed In Deaths of Man, Wife.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf of Findlay were found dead today in a rooming house. Police blamed fumes from a gas stove.

Mrs. Mabel Brown, the proprietor, said Wolf, 72, and his wife, 69, engaged a room last night and that she warned them to keep the window open when the stove was lighted. She said she found the couple dead and the window shut when she went to investigate the whining of their dog, which apparently was not affected by the gas.

BOYS PAROLED

3 Arrested In Robbery of Cigar Truck Released to Parents.

Three school boys whose arrest over the week-end by city police cleared up the robbery of the Kern Cigar company truck earlier this month and a number of stolen cars were paroled yesterday by Judge C. J. Anderson.

Two of the boys were 15 years old and one 16. Two attended Junior high and one opportunity school.

They were charged with petit larceny. After hearing their cases the court paroled them to their parents and ordered them to report regularly to the court.

ELECT HOPLEY

BUCYRUS — The election of Frank L. Hopley as president of the First Federal Savings and Loan association of Bucyrus was announced today following the annual board of directors meeting Tuesday night. Other officers elected for 1938 were E. G. Reid, vice president; S. E. Auck, secretary-treasurer; Jane A. Perrott, assistant secretary and C. V. Vollrath, attorney.

100 COUPLES DANCE AT FIRST ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAY EVENT

More than 100 couples danced last night at a ball at Delano lodge hall in the first observance of the week of President Roosevelt's birthday.

Arranged by a Delano lodge committee headed by Marvin Adams, the program included music by the Delano orchestra, the Delano trio and novelty dance numbers by Betty Ackerman and Marjorie Boylan.

Proceeds of the dance will go to the national foundation to combat infantile paralysis.

The county president's birthday ball will be held Saturday night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel where entertainment will be furnished by the Westinghouse swing band, directed by Robert O. Richards, and a floor show under the direction of Miss Marguerite Speas.

John F. Correll, chairman of the county birthday ball committee, explained today that the paralysis foundation tickets which have been sold for $1 each do not entitle holders to attend the ball.

"There has been some confusion concerning the foundation tickets," Correll said, "and the committee wants to emphasize that while proceeds from sale of the tickets go to the fund for treatment of infantile paralysis cases, separate tickets must be purchased for the ball Saturday night."

The birthday ball tickets, which sell for $1 each or $1.50 per couple, are on sale at a number of business places in Mansfield. Mrs. Louise Reese is chairman of the ticket committee and will provide information about them.

PLAN INSTITUTE

Butler to Own Annual Farm Program Next Tuesday.

BUTLER—Offering a five-session program to the people of the Butler community, the anuual Butler community institute will open in the local school auditorium Tuesday morning, according to C. G. Tugend, president of the organization.

C. R. Wagner, of Arlington, prominent in farmers' institute circles for nearly forty years, and Mrs. Fred Boli, of Canton, will be the state speakers during the sessions.

Included in the program will be a number of musical and entertainment selections to be offered by various organizations of the schools.

A basket diner will be served both Tuesday and Wednesday under the direction of the institute's dinner committee.

A Farmer's Diary

"ALL day the hoary meteor fell."

The snowstorm still roared on the second day. The woods nearby was wrapped in moving sheets of snow; the neighbor's house a dim misty outline. I saw an automobile here and there along the highway, half buried in the drifts.

It was pleasant to be in a warm room and view the swirling storm from the spacious windows. The air seemed full of snow. The wind moved it suddenly in eddying gusts like happy wrestling boys. It sifted little crystal sprays through the tightest joints and crevices.

As I returned home the western banks to every roadside were clothed in the most artistic designs. One figure, a broad sheet of white turned under like a giant scroll, another formed a pure white mantel rock of marble; and still another made a cave—an inward labyrinth of the snow. I peeped in and touched the fragile crystal walls. They were cold but strangely beautiful. How short a distance one may travel to know a different world!

I listened to the blasts strike against the trees. There was music like a deep toned organ.

As I entered my home I felt the warmth of a blazing fire and better still the warmth of sweet child companionship.

The wind piles the snow heavily upon the window frames. It howls and whistles around the corners of the house. This storm shall be my lullabe tonight.

DAYTON—(AP)—A police raid on Dayton's three major race information services, resulting in five arrests cut off all communications with tracks and curtailed betting yesterday.

RITES HELD AT BUCYRUS FOR CRASH VICTIM

F. D. Rish, Killed by Truck, Was Former Employe of N. Y. C. Rail Line.

BUCYRUS—Commitment services were held Tuesday at Oakwood cemetery for Fred D. Rish, 48, former Bucyrus resident who died of injuries received when he was struck by a truck near Wheaton, Ill., last Thursday. Rish was struck as he stepped from his car onto the highway.

The deceased, well known in Bucyrus as "Hogan" Rish, was a former railroad brakeman on the New York Central line. He has recently been employed out of Joliet, Ill., where he made his home.

Survivors include one son, Raymond; one daughter, Miss Doris Rish, of Joliet; a stepson, Kenneth Collins, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ernest Cochrane. His mother, two brothers and one sister also survive.

HONOR CRAWFORD FARMER

BUCYRUS—In a special service at the Ohio State university's farmer's week Wednesday, eight newly selected Ohio Master Farmers, one of whom was E. J. Bishop, Crawford county poultry farmer, were honored.

Bishop, recently selected for the honor of master farmer, is the first Crawford county man ever to be selected.

ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

BUCYRUS—Robert W. Chamberlain, assistant to Safety Director Elliot Ness of Cleveland, addressed members of the Bucyrus Rotary club in their regular luncheon session Tuesday. Chamberlain, who is a military associate of Dr. W. G. Carlisle, R. J. Caton, Claude Lingenfelter and W. G. Grant of Bucyrus addressed the group on the subject of Cleveland's fight against traffic accidents and crime.

GETS MASTER FARMER AWARD

NEW WASHINGTON—Double honors came to E. J. Bishop, New Washington poultry breeder, at yesterday's annual Farmers' Week program at Ohio State university, Columbus.

Bishop was one of seven farmers in the state who received a Master Farmer award for outstanding agricultural records last year, and his entires in the baby chick contest won a prize under the White Leghorn classification.

The only other Master Farmer award in this section went to C. D. Blubaugh of Danville, Knox county.

HEADS ALUMNI

BUCYRUS — Succeeding Supt. Rolla Webster of Holmes-Liberty school, D. C. Baer, superintendent of Bucyrus schools, was elected president of the Heidelberg college alumni association of Crawford, Richland and Wyandot counties at the annual banquet meeting in St. John's Reformed church Tuesday night.

James Overholt of Bucyrus, was elected vice president of the group and Miss Alice Roehr, Mt. Zion, secretary.

Speakers were Dr. C. E. Josephson, college president, and E. R. Butcher, dean of men.

SEEKS STATION INTEREST

LUCAS—Jobe Hess, member of the firm of Hess and Jones, which has operated a service station in Lucas for the past six years, has sold his interest in the Lucas Auto Service to Harry and Ralph Jones, the other two members of the firm, it was disclosed today.

Amsterdam, called the Dutch Venice, is built on 90 islands.

HEADS TRUSTEES

L. P. Auck Named President of Crawford Association.

BUCYRUS — Chairmanship of the Crawford County Township Trustees and Clerks association for 1938 goes to L. Paul Auck, prominent Whetstone township farmer, who was elected at the annual meeting of the association in common pleas court room Tuesday night. Auck succeeds W. W. Davis of Tiro.

Other officers elected were Calvin Tracht, Pork township, vice chairman, and Earl Eichhorn, Jefferson township, secretary-treasurer. Eichhorn was re-elected. Lawrence S. Heinlen, Bucyrus township, was elected to serve as a member of the executive committee, succeeding D. McCallister.

Joe R. Thomas of Hayesville, state president of the association, and Prosecutor Leo J. Scanion were the speakers.

BLUE TRI CLUB DANCE PLANNED

Snow Man Motif to be Followed at Event Saturday.

Blue Tri's mid-winter "man dance" will be a snow man dance and will be given Saturday night at Senior High school, from 8:30 to 11:30, with Betty Love and Marjorie Boals as co-chairmen.

Decorations will carry out the idea of the "snow man" dance. The committee on decorations includes Mary Werner, Margie Schwein, Shirley Eisele, Frances Hanson, Katherine Fighter and Kay Stiel.

The program committee, which has obtained Jimmy Sans' orchestra to play for the dance, is headed by Eleanore Bolesky and Anita Lifson, with James Bruce and Marjorie Gale assisting them.

Chaperones for the dance are Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Siegenthaler, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Beer, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Miller, Miss Pearl Danbeck, Miss Marjorie Campbell, Miss Melva Graham, Miss Margaret West and Miss Janette Waring.

KIWANIS CLUB AT CRESTLINE HEARS TALK BY SAFETY CLUB

CRESTLINE—Leo J. Scanlon, Crawford county prosecutor, and county chairman of the Ohio Safety Council was the guest speaker at the Wednesday luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club, held at the Y. M. C. A.

In line with the Kiwanis program of safety, the speaker gave a brief history of "Safety."

Safety education was an outgrowth due to the employer trying to educate his employes to avoid accidents and thereby reduce premiums the employer had to pay for accident insurance.

In 1912 the National Safety council met in Milwaukee, Wis., for the primary purpose of preventing individual accidents. However, the council widened the scope to include home, farm, auto and various other forms of accidents.

The speaker dwelt mostly on safety in driving an auto and stressed careful driving and the showing of courtesy to others.

He also talked about drowning, urging that carefulness and caution are necessary at all times. He gave some figures on various accidents and stated that the program of the National Safety council, of which the Ohio council is a part, is to educate the people in safety.

C. A. Thomas presided for the meeting when plans were made to set aside the first meeting of each month for business, and as such the next meeting will be held.

Plans were made for a farmers' day program on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at which time an appropriate speaker will be secured and various representative farmers will be invited to attend.

Roy L. Morrow, as chairman of the underprivileged child committee, reported that a few cases had been brought to the notice of the committee and they will be taken care of as soon as Kiwanis funds are allotted.

C. E. Jordan, attendance committee chairman, also reported that his committee had plans they were working on in that line.

Guests present were Lewis Crall and Marshal R. L. Mick.

Don't Neglect Minor Throat Irritation

Don't take chances. Rub on soothing, warming Musterole. Relief generally follows.

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating—helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

CATHARTICS A BAD HABIT

If you have common constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet, the great objection to pills and purgatives is that they only perpetuate the trouble.

Why not encourage elimination with a natural laxative food—with Kellogg's All-Bran. It absorbs moisture and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. At the same time it improves intestinal tone because Kellogg's All-Bran contains the intestinal tonic vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. And drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg at Battle Creek.

COMMENCEMENT TOMORROW TO END SCHOLASTIC CAREERS OF 87

A little more than 24 hours remain before the 87 members of the January graduating class of the Senior high school bring to a close their 12 years of studies in Mansfield schools.

The scholastic life of the 50 girls and 37 boys who make up the mid-year class will be climaxed Friday evening at commencement exercises in the high school auditorium when the seniors are presented with diplomas, signifying the completion of their high school work. The exercises will begin at 8 p. m.

The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. C. L. Anspach, president of Ashland college. His subject will be "Frontier Old and New."

Exercises will open with the class, attired in their caps and gowns, marching into the auditorium, to the accompaniment of the high school orchestra, under the direction of Sigurd Jorgenson playing "The Processional Grand March."

Rev. B. F. Hazelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, will give the invocation and Paul Smith, president of the class will give the salutation. This will be followed by selections from "Tannhauser" by the orchestra.

Dr. Anspach will be introduced by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools and the class will be presented for graduation by Jesse Beer, principal of the high school. H. W. Arlin, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas.

Benediction by Rev. Hazelbarger will bring the exercises to a close.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SETS HEARINGS

County to Act on Road Abandoning Proposal Feb. 18.

Hearings on the proposed abandonment of three more roads in Mifflin, Monroe and Worthington townships were set today for Feb. 18 by the board of Richland county commissioners.

The hearings will be held in the commissioners' office at the courthouse. Commissioners will view the thoroughfares the morning of Feb. 11. If abandoned, the roads will revert to property holders in the areas served by them. They belong to the township systems and have been used little in recent years.

Commissioners have ordered 22 short routes abandoned in the eastern and southern section of the county in the past month.

Proposed for abandonment are: The Lewis road in Mifflin township, approximately one mile long; Butler-Newville road, Monroe and Worthington townships, 2.50 miles, and the Tucker road in Mifflin township, one mile long.

Italy's Baby Race Over, Duce Gives Cash To Mothers

ROME—(U P)—Happily sobbing mothers and blushing fathers heard Benito Mussolini discourse on the virtues of fecundity with a warning that husbands had better be good in Italy.

The fatherland "wants more and better babies," the Italian dictator told the audience in Mappa Mondo hall where he made awards to 94 mothers, one for each of Italy's provinces.

They were the winners in Italy's national baby race which began April 15, 1926. They had borne 727 children, an average of 7.7 per mother. In addition most of them have other children.

Mussolini presented the 16 mothers present in the Mappa Monda hall with cash awards of 5 000 lire ($262.50) each in addition to insurance policies for 1,000 lire ($52.50) each.

Gets Trade Pacts

Eamon de Valera
. . . gets trade pacts

Tentative understanding for co-operation in improving Ireland's defenses and reduction of tariffs to increase trade was reached in conversations between Premier Eamon de Valera, of Ireland, above, and British statesmen in London. Only on the uniting of Ireland (formerly the Irish Free State) and northern Ireland (Ulster) did the conferees fail to agree. Premier de Valera had demanded that the six counties of Ulster must join the 26 counties of Ireland to form a United Ireland.

SHOCKS WORK

Ohioan Uses Novel Stunt To Unload Hogs.

LISBON, O.—(INS)—Here's one way to make a lazy hog—or a frightened one, move along. George Dented's truck overturned after a collision on the highway near here. On the truck was a load of 36 porkers, who set up a terrific squealing, but refused to leave their smashed crates. Finally Dented hit on the plan of attaching a ire to a spark plug lead, with the engine running, and applying the bare end of the wire to the nether region of each hog. Every hog moved.

To Get the Best Cough Remedy, Mix It at Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving you double-quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1938.

A Yale instructor suggests a humor course in colleges—and there's at least plenty of raw material.

A contestant in the recent Toronto stork derby has just had another baby—showing how a habit clings.

A Hollywood wife, suing for divorce, has been granted custody of the family dogs—which seems to explain everything.

To the Mid-Year Graduates.

TOMORROW evening will be a memorable occasion for the eighty-eight Mansfield boys and girls who will be awarded diplomas as graduates of Senior high school.

Whatever honors may come to them later in life, it may be doubted if any will bring a greater feeling of pride in accomplishment than will be experienced when they receive the diploma which evidences completion of their public school course.

Equalized educational opportunities have become so general in the United States within the past couple of generations that present-day young people are much inclined to take "free education" as a matter of course, rather than giving any thought to the tremendous amount of money that is willingly paid by the people of this country to maintain and improve school facilities.

Upon graduation from high school, at approximately the age of eighteen years and after twelve years of schooling, it may be assumed that each of the graduates has an 18-year-old intelligence, as compared with the estimated 12-year-old intelligence regarded as a fair average among the adult population of the United States.

It is easy to understand, therefore, why considerably above the average in ability and conduct is expected of high school graduates—with less tolerance for the misconduct and failure of some of them.

By the completion of a high school course, for instance, there should be a fairly good understanding of the principles of successful living—the need for energy, industry, honesty, sobriety, ability to get along with other people, and constant realization of the importance of adding to knowledge and preparing for advancement.

In extending congratulations and best wishes to each member of this graduating class, the thought cannot be escaped that the same elements which decreed success or failure in the past are still operative and that the future rests with each individual. Many things change from one generation to the next. The basic principles of right living do not change.

Fine Idea, If It Would Work.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT takes a position in the matter of wages and prices which, in theory, is ideal.

He warns against wage cuts in industry and advises price reductions to bring products within reach of the public.

Nothing could be finer than this. The only fly in the ointment is its difficulty of accomplishment.

There should be no reduction in wages of capable employes who can be depended upon to do their work in a satisfactory manner—in fact a great many people should be paid more than they are now receiving.

And the prices of necessities and luxuries should be low enough to place them within the buying ability of every family.

The only thing that remains to be done in the United States is to devise and carry through a practicable plan, applicable to the entire country, by which this can be done.

But before that can be accomplished there is a considerable amount of preliminary work, not the least of which is to greatly reduce the operation of partisan politics in government and to stop presenting fantastic vagaries as practicable procedure.

The amazing progress that has been made in the United States within the past 150 years, and the present comfortable living conditions of a large majority of the people of this country—as compared with any other country in the world—tends to forecast even greater progress during the next century.

But this progress will come neither through presidential ukase nor governmental edict—it will come as a result of the interested and intelligent co-operation of millions of ambitious and industrious American citizens who are able and willing to do their share of the work that must be done.

Filibusters Waste Time and Money.

WITH an impression steadily growing that more politics than principle enters into the present attempt to enact a federal anti-lynching law, the public is again given opportunity to observe the absurd spectacle of a senate filibuster, during which a relatively unimportant matter is permitted to delay vital legislation for weeks—without anything actually being accomplished.

Nor does this delay take into account the real money waste involved in the filibuster—a matter of $5,000 a day for 22 days, with a cost of more than $10,000 merely to print the speeches made since the filibuster started.

With the crime situation as it has been all over the country, in the past few years, and with evidence of increasing ability of southern states to entirely eliminate lynching under their own responsibility for law enforcement, it appears that there has been an over-emphasis on this one form of crime rather than considering it in its relationship to the total of murders committed in the United States in any one year.

Aircraft Industry Booming.

ACCORDING to Glenn L. Martin, pioneer American airplane builder, the business volume for the aircraft industry this year will approach a billion dollars. This means a 25 per cent increase over last year in planes, equipment and by-products.

There is similar progress elsewhere. "In spite of world depression," he reports, "a survey of manufacturers in all countries shows a large percentage of them making money. All plants in all countries are expanding. I offer this as proof of a boom in aeronautics regardless of conditions in other industries."

Convictions In Oil Cases Seen As Important

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — A few days ago a federal jury at Madison, Wis., found 16 oil companies and 30 of their officials guilty of conspiracy to fix gasoline prices in violation of the Sherman law.

Of course they are appealing. If they lose in the upper courts also, however, they face fines up to $5,000 apiece and, as to individuals, maximum prison terms of a year.

The total capitalization of the companies runs high into the millions.

Most of the 30 oil men involved are millionaires or multi-millionaires.

It was the most important conviction of "big money" in American history—if it sticks in appeal tribunals.

And naturally it will be followed by other similar prosecutions.

It is likely to be followed, too, by prosecutions of the same sort in still more [illegible] cases.

* * *

OF MAJOR CONSEQUENCE.

It has not been a prominently advertised case, having centered, thus far, in a federal court in the Wisconsin capital.

The justice department, nevertheless, has rated it as of major consequence.

So have the oil producers.

And so will the public, as the appeals progress; fines and prison terms attract attention when they involve millions and millionaires.

* * *

A LOBBYIST IN CAPITAL.

The oil-producing industry has a competent lobbyist in Washington. I will not mention his name, for lobbyists do not enjoy having the limelight turned on them.

For all that, I asked him what he thought of that Wisconsin verdict.

"Well," he said, "it reminds me of a story."

* * *

THE STORY.

"When I was a youngster," continued my lobbyistic acquaintance, "I had a job with a construction gang, which had, as its foreman, a mightily superstitious Irishman. He believed in pixies, the banshee and all that kind of folk.

"One day he broke a mirror.

"Gosh! Was he scared!

"He consulted with all of us. We told him that he ought to visit a Gypsy fortune teller, whose caravan happened to be in the neighborhood.

"Then we hustled to the Gypsy, slipped her a couple of bucks, and told her what to tell him."

* * *

AH-HA!

"Mike," proceeded my narrator, "turned up at the Gypsy camp as per program.

"The dame examined his hand, glanced into a crystal ball and then she said:

"'I see trouble ahead for you.'

"Mike mopped his brow and sweated. It was what he had been looking for.

"'For seven years,' said the sooth-seeress, 'you are stuck for uninterrupted bad luck.'

"The perspiration simply ran down Mike's forehead."

* * *

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

"'But at the end of the seven years,'" went on the Gypsy, according to my lobbyistic informant.

"'THEN,' she said—

"And Mike chirped up immediately. He reckoned that if, at the end of seven years, he was due to become a multimillionaire, he could stand the interval.

"'Then,' concluded the Gypsy, 'at the end of seven years, you'll be used to it.'"

* * *

USED TO IT NOW.

"We're used to it," said my oil informant.

"Our hard luck has lasted long enough to be normal.

"What do we care for a few millions in fines and a few years in the penitentiary?

"We broke our mirror and all that the fortune teller promised us was that we would get accustomed to the results of it. Let us adjust ourselves to the idea of a handful of millions in fines and some terms behind bars."

Big business will get used to it, as the fortune teller said.

"We Live By Forgetting"

IN his gentle, shining story—"What Is a Miracle?" Manuel Komroff wrote this line.

"We live by forgetting."

Four words—but they hold a complete philosophy for any life . . . the cure for hate, self-pity and cancerous grief . . . the seed of hope and growth.

"We live by forgetting." If you could live those four words for just one week, your whole life would be altered. And you would be reborn . . . filled, again, with the fresh courage and faith you knew at sixteen.

Consider your own life. What has killed you?

"But I'm not dead!" You cry indignantly.

No—but you're dying! Wasting way slowly, secretly. Each morning you feel less desire and delight . . . less vigor and enthusiasm. And a dreadful helplessness seems shackling you . . . dragging you down and down.

It's all so wrong! You're still young enough . . . seemingly strong and attractive. "Snap out of it!" your friends advise. But you can't snap out of it. You're dropped. By what? What is wasting you . . . robbing you . . . killing you?

YOUR OWN MEMORIES! THE ACCUMULATED POISON OF YOUR OWN UNASSIMILATED EXPERIENCE.

"We live by forgetting."

WE DIE BY REMEMBERING.

We die because we can't rid ourselves of our own Pasts.

Shock, in itself, doesn't kill us. Nor grief nor loss nor humiliation nor rage. These things come to everyone. They are a normal part of the tide of existence. They come and go, testing and tempering our spirits, and we are the stouter for their passage. Or rather, we should be the stouter—if we would let them go, after they have served their purpose. But unfortunately we don't.

Consider yourself again. After years of struggle you have accumulated a comfortable income—are enjoying long desired luxury. Then comes the Depression. Overnight your money is swept away—once more you find yourself facing poverty. . . .

Or perhaps you make a dreadful, a devastating mistake. You writhe in shame and despair . . .

Or it may be some crushing grief. An adored child dies. The old mother, who has been your constant comfort, passes on . . .

Or it may be some maddening injustice. You are betrayed by a trusted friend. There's a bitter misunderstanding.

Whatever form it may assume, the blow inevitably falls on you, as it does on every other human being. Then what?

THEN, IF YOU HOPE TO LIVE, YOU MUST FORGET!

You must rise from that grave . . . you must manage to put that hate and humiliation behind you . . . you must stop this hopeless yearning and burning. YOU MUST GO ON.

We live by forgetting. Yes, I know—how tragically well I know!—that it is hard to forget . . . almost impossible . . . that, in the midst of laughter, the tears will suddenly fall. YET IT CAN BE DONE! You can bury the past and reach out toward the future. The power lies in you. You need only be willing to use that power.

It's not sorrow that wrecks us . . . but our own unwillingness to put that sorrow away.

Here's Why Twins Are Alike, As Explained By Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOR A NUMBER of years Dr. H. H. Newman, of the University of Chicago, has been interested in the subject of twins. With two associates, he has just published a book which summarizes the information he has assembled to date.

The study of twins gives answers to many problems that are of great interest. I have frequently referred to the records of twins who have died of the same disease almost at the same age. Such records strengthen one's feeling that many disease processes are hereditary, and that longevity is dependent mostly upon hereditary factors. Two twins start out in life with the same biological urge and equipment, and it hardly seems possible to think, in the face of the fact that the wheels of life run down in exactly the same number of days, that heredity is not much more important than environment.

The two kinds of twins are called "identical" and "fraternal." The identical twins are one-egg twins and the fraternal are two-egg twins. The two-egg twins are liable to differ as much in appearance as any other brothers or sisters of the same family.

In order to decide that twins are identical a number of factors must be examined. They must be so strikingly similar in general appearance they are liable to be mistaken one for the other. They must be essentially identical in hair color and hair form. They must have essentially the same eye coloring. They must have essentially the same ears, and the same type of teeth; the same irregularities in dentition. One hand of one twin must be more like one hand of the other twin than like his own other hand. If, in addition to this, mirror imaging is present, it is confirmatory evidence. Mirror imaging means that one twin is right-handed and the other twin is left-handed; that the hair whirl is reversed, etc.

The fact that twins dress alike, talk and act alike, is not due entirely to their being together and deliberately imitating each other. They see alike; they like the same colors and the same pattern of clothes. Twins who have been separated during their childhood may be brought together in adult life wearing almost exactly the same necktie, pattern of clothes, and exactly the same type of spectacles as to frames and shape of the lenses.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

As to Governmental Reorganization.

MUCH furor is being raised that the president's reorganization bill—which happens to be the work of men who passed many months in getting to the bottom of the governmental labyrinth—would give the president an opportunity to become a dictator.

The opposite is more likely to be true. If governmental business is not simplified and modernized, if the red tape is not cut, people WILL become disgusted and, in their despair, bring about a dictatorship.

There may be differences of opinion over details among honest doubters, but the real opposition comes from elements who stand most to gain by confusion in government management, and who through that confusion can produce stalemates, holding up any forward or popular movements.

The way to liberty is through simplification and the concentration of responsibility. The power of congress is not usurped by a strengthening of executive management. It rather is aided, for congress then can more readily see that its desires are carried out; and, if they are not, congress merely has to cut off appropriations.

The president of the United States is no different from the president of a corporation: He cannot go beyond the limits set by the directors (stockholders have no say in the modern corporation).

On the other hand, no corporation would dare to hamper and cripple executive operations; the corporation soon would be ruined; it could not function.

The president of the United States—it seems to have been forgotten — is responsible to the people of the United States, to the electorate, not to a congressional minority. A congressional minority seldom represents the will of the people; it eventually disappears in the elections that follow through the ensuing years.

* * *

TOO MANY JOKERS?

Much of our national confusion is the result of slippery politicians. They face two ways at once—winking at one side, while apparently granting the desires of the other side.

Few men, no matter what form of government, seem able to withstand the temptation when in public office.

Read this headline in the conservative Cleveland Plain Dealer:

"Jobless pay law in Ohio holds joker. Some employers begin layoffs to cut future levy; board hits conduct."

Because of the joker, the law becomes in effect just the opposite of what it was intended to be.

* * *

RELIEF.

As for relief, we still try to hide from the facts. Until there is a solution more potent than the conferences in Washington portend, we shall have an enormous relief problem.

Again turning to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, we read a headline: "Social work 'hush' hit by Grossman. Former county relief head says public must be told uncensored story."

What is the "uncensored story"?

"Had the task of social workers been adequately done, the public now would no longer regard the problems as something remote from its interests and affecting the inferior fringes of the population.

"Then would the word 'chiseler' cease to spring so easily and falsely from the mouths of the well-fed, as their protest against the existence of needs which they do not understand.

"Then would it be impossible for political vandals and fakers to attempt to curry cheap favor with the populace by unscrupulous malignment of the professional social worker.

"Then no longer could special interests opposing new taxes, however desperate the need, save face for their controlled puppets in the legislature by the repetition of such vicious slanders that men will not work except under the lash of hunger and, to force men to jobs, relief must be made as degrading and humiliating as possible.

"Then would it be futile for any governor or legislature to attempt to place upon our statute books relief laws which howsoever remote might threaten to bring to our city streets Russian-like hordes of wild, hungry children — laws so infamous as to outrage even the conscience of an Elizabethan overseer of the poor.

"Then it would be fully understood that the problems of the client group are not specific to them, that they are common to our economy, and that, but for the grace of God and the fortunities of life, each of us might have been one of them.

"No longer then would it be necessary to seek to obtain social justice through emotional appeals and moral crusades."

All this was part of a speech before one of the leading clubs of Cleveland. The reaction so far has been so favorable that two-faced politicians are coming forth with excuses and apologies.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

On With the Fiscal Joy-Ride.

By HARLEY L. LUTZ
Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University.

The president's budget for the fiscal year 1938-39 is now before congress. Its general character had been fully fore-shadowed by the course of recent events. Consequently, it was not surprising to learn that the deficit for the current year, 1937-38, is now estimated to be considerably larger than had been forecast by the earlier guesses. Nor is it surprising to learn that all hope has already been abandoned for a balance in the next fiscal year, despite the long series of promises to this effect.

Only picayunish reductions of expenditure are proposed. The economy note, so faintly sounded in a few earlier public statements, is now wholly lacking. Instead, the emphasis is placed on the rigid and inflexible character of public expenditures, with strong implication that very little can be done about reducing them. There is definite implication that the country must accept, as a matter of course, the prospect of an annual federal expenditure of the general magnitude of $7,000,000,000.

If this be the situation, and it certainly will be as long as there is no concerted, vigorous demand for drastic economies, then it becomes apparent that there is no hope for future budget balancing, since such a level of expenditures stands well above any actual or estimated maximum of public revenues. The largest total of ordinary revenue ever received by the federal government was $6,694,500,000, collected in the fiscal year 1920. The present estimate for the fiscal year 1938 is $6,320,500,000, but it yet remains to be seen how serious will be the effects of the current reaction upon the yield of the income tax.

In short, it appears that we must contemplate an indefinite period of deficits, of a magnitude of a billion dollars or thereabouts. The current budget message will be read in vain for any expression of regret or concern over such an outlook, or for any constructive suggestions to congress as to how to terminate it.

Worse still, there appears to be decided apathy throughout the country on the subject of budgetary balance. Some business men are reported to oppose expenditure reduction as being deflationary. The special advocates of liberal spending continue to harp on the merits of creating purchasing power by government action. Budgetary balance is even denounced by some writers as part of the primitive and childish folklore of capitalism.

The argument that is considered to be most devastating of all is the assertion that we had a balanced budget all through the 20's, but this did not stave off the big depression. Those who use this argument entirely overlook the fact that all of the unbalancing that occurred during the 30's did not stave off the Roosevelt depression of 1937.

In view of the present outlook and attitude, therefore, it would seem to be a waste of paper and ink for this writer to say again that there can be only one end to the long road of unsound finance. This road leads inevitably and inexorably to financial disaster. Because of our wealth and resources, it may be a fairly long road and we may continue our financial joyride at high speed for quite a while before the smash-up. But no amount of financial juggling, or of fake economic and financial argument, can save us in the end.

The longer and the faster we travel over the broad highway of fiscal deficits, the worse will be the crash when it comes.

Timely Editorial

Discourtesy Is Deadly.

In discussing the traffic problem it is easy to forget that the average American stands in a dual relationship toward it. He is both motorist and pedestrian.

Indeed, the average American frequently seems to forget it himself.

If he did not, surely as a motorist he would show more consideration for the pedestrian he sends scurrying to the sidewalk for safety or splashes as he whizzes by through the mud.

And as a pedestrian he would show more consideration for the motorist trying to navigate along a crowded highway made doubly difficult because those afoot jump heedlessly in front of his car, or loiter discourteously on crossings practically defying him to run them down.

If we leave out the person who drives after drinking, the person who walks abroad while intoxicated, and people who are unfitted mentally to sit behind a wheel, it is not difficult to find the biggest obstacle in the way of traffic safety. It is lack of courtesy among those using the highways whether awheel or afoot. —Detroit Free Press.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

"BULLS," as mistakes are dubbed in the news rooms, are the despair of all who live by the pen. Even that most meticulous of writing grammarians, F. P. A., when he was columning, tripped several times on the identical mistakes he jeeringly plucked from works of his fellows.

A "bull" will sometimes go through six or seven expert hands after it leaves a writer and not be noticed until, like a lighthouse in a mist, it suddenly looms on the printed page. In a recent column I wrote about Bill Corum there were three stark errors.

Errors of construction so flagrant a school boy would catch them at a glance. Yet they not only escaped me as well as more expert editorial eyes and most of the copy reading sharp shooters on newspapers. Too, every writer has special stumblers constantly to bedevil him.

A number of writers employ part time services of professors in English to study their manuscript and some, such for instance as Ernest Hemingway, do not give a hoot. Edith Wharton is reputed to have turned in the most grammatically air-tight manuscript of any modern.

We had an erudite editor on a mid-west daily who grew increasingly agitated over the butcheries of English in our paper. He cautioned us several times at staff meetings and then one day after a flock of bungles showed up in the noon edition wrote a scathing bulletin to be pasted up at once—promising to sack the entire copy crew if such derelictions happened again. In his 300 word phillipic were four terrible "bulls" which were, appropriately enough, ringed in red by one of the guilty and gleeful rascals.

An embarrassing moment on the copy desk was during a Taft campaign when I wrote an 8-column Page 1 streamer: "Taft Election Forecasted!" I was utterly ignorant that "Forecast" was correct, but the bawling out I received before the entire staff ten minutes after the edition was out impressed it vividly on my memory.

Out in Cincinnati, by the way, Eddie Steinborn has been made managing editor of the Taft newspaper, The Times Star. Steinborn is a refutation of the editorial shop saw that the faithful employe who sticks to one newspaper winds up a putterer on the exchange desk. He began his journalizing as a cub on his paper more than 40 years ago and after occupying the top reportorial assignments became successively assistant city editor, city editor, assistant managing editor and managing editor. Newspapermen who have weathered such storms usually and deservedly become pillars of wisdom in their communities and there isn't a job in New York, Paris, or London that would attract them.

Classy toggery shops are featuring window displays of the Inverness cape, lined both in white satin and purple. I saw the swirl of two leaving limousines at the curb of Sherry's recently and Cholly Knickerbocker listed several, including Mons. Beebe squiring Libby Holman, at the opera opening, Dudley Field Malone, before taking the veil, used to be an Inverness boy. Phil Simms, so far as the record shows, was the first newspaperman to sport this Scottish sartorial elegance. I believe in every man, down deep, lingers an urge to swagger forth in an Inverness at least once, even though he may not be particularly style conscious. The Inverness and the monocle somehow symbolize the unattainable in fashion dictums. Gadgets only for life's Ben Ali Haggins.

Thingumbobs: Conde Nast has seen "The Women" nine times . . . Heywood Broun holds the columnar record for never having been late with his copy . . . Charles Boyer's favorite breakfast dish is a half grape fruit sprinkled with brown sugar and baked . . . Rockwell Kent buys $5 neckties for his friends and 50 centers for himself . . . H. I. Phillips, the paragrapher, likes to write his column under a palm tree in the Florida moonlight, the lucky stiff . . . Bob Brinkerhoff eats 5 o'clock dinners so he can get at his pipe earlier.

A not so old friend was in a funk today. Along a reach of Central Park a pair of motorists yelled, "Hey, Pappy, which way to Holland Tunnel?" That "Pappy" has kept him before the mirror ever since.

THE PIPER'S TUNE

CHAPTER XIII

"Then we're rather near neighbors. Fine. I'll . . . ." He broke off, adding in a lowered tone, "The posse has hit your trail. It's Sheriff Cantine himself." He arose as Caradad turned to see Terry sauntering in their direction. Before she could speak, Severance was observing casually, "Hello, Cantine. Here's your prisoner. I've been holding her for you. Sit down, won't you?"

"Thanks, no." Terry came to Caradad's chair, rested his elbow on its back and smiled down into her upraised face. "We were afraid something had happened to you. Gerta just told me she'd been hunting everywhere for you. She asked me to join in the search."

* * *

Caradad had watched Terry's approach with a little trepidition, thinking that he would be displeased at her desertion. But before she could devise anything that sounded like a reasonable excuse, Severance had taken over the situation.

"It's your own fault, Cantine," he explained blandly. "I was about to escape from this bedlam and chanced to spot Miss Vardell out there. Absolutely deserted. It was so refreshing to see somebody like her that I took the liberty of introducing myself and dragging her in here to view Nick's collection. If you hadn't blundered in, we'd have made an evening of it. Miss Vardell likes books."

"I know that," Terry agreed quickly. "That's why I thought of the library first of all."

Mr. Severance's outrageous explanation left Caradad breathless but thankful. He was speaking again.

"Miss Vardell has been telling me that you are from the wide-open spaces, too. An old neighbor of hers. Must be very pleasant to get together again. But you mustn't be selfish with her. I suppose I must let her go now." He turned to Caradad. "I hope you won't forget our little engagement for tomorrow afternoon."

"Oh, yes. . . . tomorrow afternoon."

She choked a little over her reply. Mr. Severance certainly had said nothing about an engagement, but she was in his debt. She was enlightened by his next words to Terry.

"Miss Vardell is particularly interested in paintings, she tells me. I have some favorites at the Institute that I am sure she would enjoy and I want the privilege of showing them to her. I will call at your hotel about 2, if that is convenient," he suggested to Caradad.

"Perfectly," she managed. "I shall be expecting you."

"On that condition, I surrender you now," he agreed with a nod. "Until tomorrow, then."

* * *

The rest of the evening passed more quickly. "I really had a very delightful time," Caradad said earnestly to Terry as they entered the deserted lobby of the Rushmore at a late hour and paused for a last-minute chat near the elevators.

"Glad of it," he returned. "We'll have some more like it. If you felt up to it, I intended to ask you for some time tomorrow afternoon—a little ride up the shore. But Severance beat me to it. We'll make it the day after, if you like—but I'll get in touch with you first."

"Terry, tell me something about Mr. Severance. He seems like a very nice person."

"You telling me?" Terry grinned. "Now, there is one fellow I can tell you about. You'll find him in "Who's Who," too. He's another of those chaps who have money. Plenty. But he's really worth while, you know. Spends most of his time going to outlandish places and coming back to deliver addresses to learned societies. Writes books and hunts big game on the side. He's what they call a patron of the Arts:—that accounts for his dragging you to the galleries first thing. Anything he tells you there will be on the up and up, I dare say."

"Goodness! That rather overwhelms me!"

"You're getting a break," Terry admitted dryly. "Take it from me, he doesn't pal around with everybody—sorry to say."

"Why? What do you mean?"

"Oh, he's one of the birds I've tried to get in with and never had any luck. A deal with him would mean a lot. Wish you'd try to cultivate him a little for my sake," he finished, with what obviously was intended for a jesting air. "Mustn't keep you longer, Dad. Good night. I'll be seeing you."

"Good night, Terry. And thank you."

* * *

Caradad looked very thoughtful on the trip up. Terry's last remark might explain some things. For instance, Mr. Severance's saying that Terry made customers of his friends. And it might explain why Terry made no objection whatever when he found her in the library at Nick's.

Queer. Almost as queer as to be going to bed at nearly 4 in the morning, Caradad told herself with a yarn. Whatever would the Pomphrettes think of that?

She would have been still more surprised had she seen Terry making his way back to Nick's at that early hour and, particularly, had she known that he was to escort Mrs. Greenway to her apartment. At that lady's insistence. Mr. Cantine was in none too amiable a frame of mind as a result, when he reached his goal and found a select group waiting his return. Tankersley looked as innocent and fresh as ever after the evening, in contrast to Gerta whose face wore a slight frown of annoyance. This might have been due to the untimely vivacity of Mrs. Kenton. She had retained three of her satellites but they did not seem overenthusiastic about her idea of adjoining to an all-night restaurant and finishing the party over a breakfast of griddle cakes. Captain Kenton had been unable to keep the pace set by his young helpmeet and was in a far corner, slumped in an easy chair and breathing stertorously.

Nick raised a glass in one hand and squinted thoughtfully at its contents.

"My dear, Margo," he addressed himself oracularly to Mrs. Kenton, "I think it was Bill Shakespeare who mentioned viewing something with a jaundiced eye. If it wasn't Shakespeare, it must have been some one else. But that's my idea of the way to view griddle cakes in the middle of the night. With the eye—before the liver takes over. Am I right, friend of my youth?" The last question was for Terry who entered the room at that moment.

"I doubt it," the latter remarked, without enthusiasm or an answering smile for the one sent him by Greta.

"Don't tell me you're for breakfast," Nick complained.

"I'm for home and bed. Are you ready to start now, Gerta?"

"Of course, my dear. Just as soon as I get my things. Come along with me." She hurried from the room, calling back a good night.

"Nice party, Nick," Terry told his friend. "Thanks a lot."

"Think Annie had a good time?"

"I know she did."

"Swell child, Annie Oakley. Tell her I'm going to have her here again soon—going to stage a rodeo. If you know any nice horses, let me have their phone numbers."

"I'll do that. Good night, everybody."

* * *

Terry proved a quiet companion during the taxi ride to Gerta's apartment. "I scarcely had a word with you all 'evening," she chided gently. "But now you're coming up and let me make you a cup of coffee before you go home."

"Thanks, Gerta, but you'll have to excuse me this time. I've got to see some people on a matter—need my head."

"Terry! Saturday morning? Nobody does anything on Saturday."

"I do."

"I wonder if your little friend would feel up to going for a drive. I'll call her this afternoon, if you think the dissipation hasn't been too much for her."

"No good. She's going to look over the institute—with Severance."

"Terry! You don't mean the Severance!"

"Huh-huh."

"Well, isn't that—just splendid!"

Caradad found herself somewhat apprehensive as the hour approached when she would meet the famous John Severance, for the second time, and she took particular pains to look her best. But he did not look formidable in the least as she approached him in the lobby of the Rushmore although he scarcely smiled.

"Hello," was his casual greeting accompanied by a jerky nod of his close-cropped head. "I hope you're not wearing heels."

"Why?" Caradad wanted to know, quite forgetting to say good afternoon in her surprise.

"Two reasons. It's a bit tiresome to do a gallery. And we're walking to the institute. It's unusual to find a city woman who can and will use her feet," he added, a slight smile softening the line of his grim jaw.

"I love to walk," Caradad assured him.

"That's what I figured. The same as I like to go about without a hat. I'm telling you now, so you won't think I'm absent-minded. If you're ready. . . ."

Severance did not prove to be a particularly loquacious companion on the stroll down the avenue, but he answered questions readily. Once within the walls of the grimy institute, however, he took over the duties of guide and host. He showed Caradad a number of famous works with which he presumed she might be familiar. Etchings proved to be his favorite medium and there was a special exhibit he was particularly anxious that Caradad should appreciate. He talked so learnedly of processes and tone values that the girl was inclined to suspect him of some artistic ability.

"No, no!" he exclaimed shortly. "I can do sketch maps with some degree of accuracy, but that's as far as I go. Etchings interest me because it seems to me they require more skill than daubing paint. I have a fair little collection of my own, some quite good ones, just another useless hobby."

NEWS OF THE WORLD IN PICTURES

The Babe and DiMag Meet for First Time

Although he stepped into Babe Ruth's shoes as the New York Yankees most publicized star, Joe DiMaggio never met the home run king until the Friars Club dinner at the Hotel Astor, in New York, where this photo was taken. Between the two champs is Bill Corum, sports columnist and guest of honor, who introduced the two.

He Wants His Father

Mrs. Drophin, cousin of Howard Frankel, protects the boy as he is startled by the cameraman. Custody problem surrounds the boy who prefers his father to the mother into whose custody New York courts ordered him. The boy is pictured after a runaway attempt.

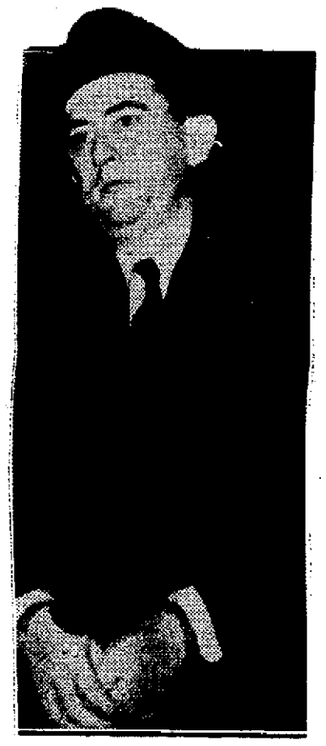
Reno "Kings" Ready for Court Contest

The twin kings of Reno, William J. Graham (glasses) and James McKay (right, seated), confer with attorneys John Taafe (left) and Moses Polakoff (right, standing), as their mail fraud trial opens in United States Court, in New York. They are charged with fleecing victims of $3,500,000. Willis Van Devanter, retired United States Supreme Court justice, is the trial jurist.

Cheat Death in the Air

At top, left, is Philip King, of the United States Maritime Commission, and right, C. C. Blane, of Washington, passengers who were reported to have written farewell letters as the plane in which they were riding out a storm flew blindly over the East Coast for six hours. But Pilot Capt. Fred Jones (lower right) and Co-pilot James Corrigan brought the ship down on East Hartford, Conn., Airport without a scratch. The run from New York to Washington, normally eighty minutes, took six agonizing, wind and rain-buffeted hours. (Central Press)

C. C. C. Swindler



Reno E. Stitely, former chief of the voucher unit of the National Park Service, who diverted more than $75,000 of government funds to his own use, for which he created an imaginary C. C. C. project, is shown as he entered jail after being sentenced to six to twelve years. He was also fined $36,000.

"Now About That Return Match"

Tommy Farr and Jim Braddock, erstwhile ring foes, display tender affection as they meet in promoter Mike Jacobs' office in New York to discuss a return bout. When this photo was taken, only thing that stood between them was a matter of percentage.

Self-Made Widow Leaves Court

Mrs. Margaret Pearson (right), 32, leaves court in Jersey City, N. J., with a matron, as the prosecution wound up its case. State charged she deliberately shot her cop husband. Defense claims she put up with abuse for ten years.

Yangtze Boss

First assignment for Rear Admiral David M. LeBreton, newly-promoted from a captaincy, will be to command the Yangtze River patrol. His flagship will be the gunboat Luzon, sister ship of the Panay, which was bombed and sunk by Jap airmen.

In English Jail

James Hynes (above), 53-year-old New Yorker, was sentenced to 12 years penal servitude in London's Old Bailey for the robbery of money and jewels worth more than $75,000. He entered the home of Mrs. Millicent Hesketh-Wright in swank Park Lane, and at pistol point escaped with the loot.

The Ranee and a Wrestler

Although the Ranee of Sarawak, wife of the only white Rajah in the world, seemed upset when Princess Baba, her daughter, married Bob Gregory, European middleweight wrestling king, all is now well, to judge from this picture, taken in New York. It was snapped when Bob and his bride disembarked from the Manhattan and were met by the Ranee.

Wants $10,000 More

Granted $500,000 when she got her divorce, Monaei Lindley Groves, of Los Angeles (above), claims an additional $10,000 from Wally Groves, boy wizard of Wall Street. She claims the amount is due her for secretarial work she performed for company owned by Groves.

Held in $12 Killing

Orazio Grassi enters homicide court, in New York, with a prison keeper. Police charge he aided Michael Alex in the $12 murder of an insurance collector in December. Alex was tried four times for a previous murder, was twice in the death house.

Chose Death to Disappointment

Beautiful Rosamond Pinchot, socialite-actress, who chose death to near-success, is pictured in one of her latest portraits. Few young women her age—she was 33—were possessed of such a wide diversity of interests, but, her friends intimated, she chose death because her hopes for a career on the stage, in the arts, and domestic tranquillity, were, in each instance, through sheer misfortune, continuously being dashed.

Swearing In New Jersey's New Senator

John Milton is sworn in as junior United States Senator from New Jersey despite the protests of labor. Pictured left to right: Senior Senator William Smathers, Milton, Vice President Garner, and Governor A. Harry Moore, whose unexpired term Milton will finish.

"Daughter of Shanghai."

One of the world's most inhuman rackets—the smuggling of aliens into the United States—provides the plot for "Daughter of Shanghai," starring Anna May Wong, and opening at the Madison theater Friday. The film is a portrayal of the racket as it exists in San Francisco. In the story Miss Wong, daughter of a wealthy merchant who was killed when he refused to have any part in the racket, undertakes to get the goods on the band. She is assisted by Philip Ahn, a federal agent. The trail takes them to the gang's hiding-out places where "cargos" are re-shipped and the human freight given a chance to exercise. She gathers the evidence and then discovers that a so-called ally is really the head of the ring. "Hitting A New High," with Lily Pons is the current attraction.

Romantic Comedy.

What to do when a flock of creditors threaten to take the very clothes from an orphaned girl's back, not to mention stripping her palatial home of all of its furniture, forms the opening situation of the romantic-comedy, "She's Got Everything," with Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern in the leading roles. The film plays through Friday at the Ohio theater. The theme revolves around the creditors' plans to finance the society girl in a campaign to marry a rich South American, which they feel will insure getting their money back. But the girl refuses. She decides to work and gets a job working for Raymond. However, the creditors continue their campaign, and the results involve the girl and Raymond in a series of complications.

"Come and Get It."

"Come and Get It," the screen version of Edna Ferber's novel of the lumber camps, brings Edward Arnold, Joel McCrea and Frances Farmer to the Majestic theater Friday. Arnold plays Barney Glasgow, the great lumber baron who, in his youth had given up love for power, and years later is mocked by his own decision when he falls in love with the daughter of the woman he once loved, and finds his own son his successful rival. "Where Trails Divide," with Tom Keene, Eleanor Stewart, David Sharp and Steve Clark completes the double feature program. The film depicts the adventures of a young lawyer who goes west to practice, and finds his brother involved in staging holdups of the Wells Fargo express. "Dark Journey," and "Dodsworth," play through today.

* * *

"Lady Behave."

Sally Eilers and Neil Hamilton are in the principal roles of "Lady Behave," opening at the Ritz Friday for a two-day run. Miss Eilers and Hamilton portray a man and woman drawn together after a party marriage. They become acquainted as an aftermath of a reckless affair during which Hamilton marries Miss Eiler's sister. They have a real time of it before everything is ironed out. Buck Jones in the western, "Law of Tombstone," will be the second feature. Irene Dunne and Allen Jones in "Show Boat," and Tom Tyler in "Mystery Range," are the current features.

Book of the Week

7 MUST DIE, by James Warner Bellah. (D. Appleton-Century company, New York, 254 pp., $2.)

Hawaii and the South Seas provide the background of this new mystery novel penned by the author of "Dancing Lady." The story itself revolves round the adventures of a group of men and women aboard the schooner, Storm Child, who are searching for a lost treasure of pearls.

The people who chartered the little boat had no idea that seven of the men among their number would die before they returned to civilization. When two of them are murdered it looked as though things would quiet down. But then the boat runs unto a reef and the passengers and chew are shipwrecked on an uncharted island, the very island on which it is suspected that King Bradley had taken his pearls after forcing the crew of his little yacht to return to Hawaii in row boats.

And the characters whose fortunes mingle in stirring fashion throughout the book are a diverse and interesting lot—a former concert singer, a selfish adventuress, an enigmatic doctor, a self-made man of the South Seas, two young people very much in love, and an assorted gang of crooks and seamen.

With romance, sunken treasure and unknown South Sea island, interwoven through the pages, the reader can follow with interest the plot and counter-plot to a thrilling and surprising climax.—C. M.

For older boys who like to keep up-to-date with their reading, "Mighty Engineering Feats" by Harriet Salt, will prove an interesting book.

The author takes ten of the most famous engineering feats of America and tells their story. The ten are:

The San Francisco - Oakland and Golden Gate bridges, The Boulder Dam, The George Washington Bridge, The Columbia River Highway, The Holland Tunnel, The Alaska Railroad, The Wilson Dam, The New York City Water Supply, The Panama Canal, and The First Transcontinental Railroad.

FILLING STATION STIRS ART ROW

It Keeps on Doing Business Despite Furor Created at Art Exhibition.

CASPER, Wyo.—(U.P.)—The filling station that rocked the art world continues to do business, and its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Vroman, have dismissed the dispute that divided the patrons and progenitors of painting into two camps.

This "Mona Lisa" of service stations stands just one mile east of Casper and has been disputedly preserved for posterity on the canvas titled "Wyoming Landscape," painted by Aaron Bohrod.

The Vroman gasoline station became the point of artistic conjecture when "Wyoming Landscape" was awarded top honors and $500 at the Chicago art institute exhibition last November. The argument arose when Mrs. Frank G. Logan, donor of the prize, was unimpressed by Artist Bohrod's colorful, if desolate, "portrait" of the filling station.

"It isn't worth a nickel," retorted Mrs. Logan.

Unlike the critical art patron, Mrs. Vroman was pleased with the painting.

"It looks just like our service station," she said on examining a print of the painting. "There's the same swab of paint on the big tank."

Mrs. Vroman pointed out some changes that the painter had made. The artist had changed the style of roof on the office of the station, she said, and the casper mountains, which really are some distance away, were replaced by black hills which rise abruptly in the rear of the station.

"We started our station on nothing," Mrs. Vroman said. "First we had a house and pump, then we added a tank. We kept adding until we had quite a set of buildings and improvements.

"In fact, two more tanks and another gasoline pump have been added since Mr. Bohrod 'did' our station. It's much prettier now."

SINGS FOR CLUB

Mansfield Soprano Gives Program at Optimist Meeting.

Eleanor Stone Smith, Mansfield soprano, gave a program at the Optimist club luncheon yesterday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Ernest Wesson, who was scheduled to speak on "Ballyhoo" was unable to be present because of illness. John Grabler, program chairman, was the accompanist for Mrs. Smith.

Next Wednesday the club will observe the Optimist sponsored National Social Hygiene week by having Dr. C. H. Bell talk to the group on social diseases. Ralph Damlos is program chairman.

$50,000 MORE SET UP FOR WPA WEATHER CHECK

22 Observation Stations In County to Be Continued as Result of Allocation.

A WPA allotmnet for $50,000 to operate weather observation stations in 24 northern and eastern Ohio counties, including Richland, had been approved today by President Roosevelt, according to dispatches from Washington.

The weather stations, which have been in operation for seven months, are sponsored by the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district with headquarters at New Philadelphia.

Counties in which stations are located in this area include Richland, Knox, Ashland, Morrow, and Holmes. There are 22 stations in Richland county.

Providing employment for about 500 needy persons, the stations, located four miles apart, serve as information posts for Muskingum Conservancy district officials. Readings are made every half hour from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. of the temperature, wind velocity and precipitation. Reports are sent to headquarters at New Philadelphia every night where 50 persons tabulate them.

Aid for Soil Programs.

WPA climatic projects officials contend that the reports will provide information of value in planning flood and soil erosion control programs and will help scientists to determine the relation of crop yield to rainfall.

Richland county residents who take the readings at stations near their homes are:

Mrs. Helen Wappner, Charles E. Mosier, J. F. Smalley, Mrs. Esther A. Zediker, Howard A. Trease and Fred Johnson, all of Mansfield and vicinity; Fred M. Post, Plymouth; Ira Backinsto, Shiloh; Wade McMillan, Greenwich; Edwin Amstutz, Shiloh; Arthur L. Dewey, Frank Nazor and Mrs. Loura M. Spiess, of Shelby; Garrett Frisby, Shiloh; Homer L. McClurg, Lucas; Arthur Sherman, Lexington; Kenneth L. Shrader, Mrs. Mary Sprague, and Harley Zediker, of Bellville; Samuel Byerly, Perrysville; Ray Oswalt and Fred Metcalf, Butler.

Toledo Company Sues CIO For Picketing Damage.

TOLEDO —(AP)— Suit for $50,000 against the United Laundry Workers union, No. 153, the Committee for Industrial Organization with which it is affiliated, and officers of the union, was filed in Lucas county common pleas court by the City Stores, Inc., also known as the City Cleaning and Laundry company.

The amount is asked for damages allegedly suffered by the plaintiff to its property and business as a result of picketing by the union.

The company also asks a permanent injunction be granted preventing or controlling picketing.

The plant has been the scene of repeated disturbances since a strike was called several weeks ago.

Weinberger's Drug Store Offers FREE Sample Of New High Blood Pressure Treatment

Every High Blood Pressure Sufferer in Mansfield is urged to go to the Weinberger Drug Store and receive a free sample of ALLIMIN Essence of Garlic Parsley Tablets for High Blood Pressure. These are the tablets used by Dr. Frederic Damrau, eminent physician of New York City, in his now famous clinical work which he reduced the blood pressure and relieved dizziness and headaches in the great majority of all cases treated. Get a copy of Dr. Damrau's interesting report, along with your free sample of ALLIMIN. A special new process by which these tablets are produced makes them both tasteless and odorless. A liberal treatment costs only 50c.—Adv.

A TALL STORY

Hunter Tells How He Got 6 Rabbits Without Firing.

CONNEAUT, O.—(INS)—Six rabbits without firing a shot. That was the story told here by Harvey Floro and Adam Samson, commercial fisherman. They gave much of the credit for the feat to their rabbit dog which trapped five of the cottontails so that they could be captured. Floro caught the sixth because it ran so close to him that he couldn't use his gun. When he found his gun useless, Floro dropped it, made a diving tackle at the rabbit and rose with it in his hand.
